

Festival organiser predicts a Lounge sell-out

By Chris Britcher

ORGANISERS of this year's Lounge on the Farm festival say they are expecting the first sell-out in the event's six-year history this summer, with 10,000 music fans set to descend on the site for the three-day extravaganza.

After doubling the capacity on its licence last year, when 6,500 fans attended the event in Merton Farm, this year organisers have splashed out on securing a number of big name acts which should see all 10,000 tickets go.

And that would mean the festival making money for the first time in five years.

Acts such as Ellie Goulding,

Echo & The Bunnymen and The Streets will headline the event which takes place between July 8-10.

Explains Sean Baker, founder and organiser of the festival: "We made money on the very first one, but not since then. You need to grow to that size to succeed. Each year we have an extra 1,000-1,500 but you need to get to 10,000 to make the festival work financially. You need the bigger acts to pull in the extra people. There's a very good possibility we'll sell out this year."

But he admits booking the big names has come at a bigger cost.

He adds: "You pay top whack

MP calls for extra bank holiday in tribute to armed forces

MP Julian Brazier is spearheading a push for a new bank holiday to be established in honour of our armed forces.

The Canterbury Conservative politician has co-sponsored a ten minute rule bill in the House of Commons which calls for a bank holiday on the Monday after Remembrance Sunday.

Mr Brazier, who served as an officer in the Territorial Army for 13 years, said:

"Having a national holiday to recognise the contribution of our armed forces would not be unusual. In the United States, Canada, Australia, Russia and France national holidays for their service personnel have been a date on the calendar for years.

"The brave people who serve in our armed forces and their families deserve to be recognised for the sacrifices they make. I am proud to be a sponsor of this ten minute rule bill. This is an opportunity for society to pay the enormous debt we owe to them."

A YouGov poll found some 68 per cent of those quizzed wanted an extra bank holiday, with 21 per cent calling for it to fall after Remembrance Sunday.

Mr Brazier added: "I would also like to take this opportunity to pay tribute to the Argylls and 3rd Battalion Princess of Wales Royal Regiment, two units whose home is in Canterbury.

"It is with great pride that I serve as Member of Parliament to so many service men and women. Their contribution to the ongoing campaign in Afghanistan has been substantial. We should all be proud of the sacrifice our local regiments make when facing combat."

TRANSPORT

Government 'out of touch' over rail fare increases

SHADOW transport secretary Maria Eagle has urged a rethink of crippling rail fare increases planned for Kent's commuters.

From January, train operators across the UK will be allowed to increase fares by three per cent above inflation, every year until 2015.

This means a total price hike of almost £1,500 for commuters using high-speed services in some parts of Kent.

Ms Eagle condemned the plans during a visit to Chatham on Wednesday.

She said: "The Tory-led Government is out of touch with the cost-of-living crisis facing Kent commuters, and fails to understand how these eye-watering rail fare rises will add to the burden on families.

"For many the cost of getting to work is now the biggest single item in their budget – bigger than mortgage payments.

"These rises are the consequence of the decision to cut too far and too fast, meaning commuters are having to pay more to plug the hole in the transport budget.

"With train fares set to rise four times faster than wages in the next year, ministers should give commuters a break."

The Government announced in October's Comprehensive Spending Review that regulated rail fares would increase by three per cent above the Retail Price Index rate of inflation for three years from 2012 – up from the current one per cent above inflation. However, Kent commuters have already been hit with one increase of three per cent above inflation due to a special arrangement between the Government and rail operator Southeastern.

Cllr Gordon Cowan – leader of the Labour group on Dover council – said people commuting via high-speed trains from Dover will see the cost of their season ticket rise by £1,486 between 2011 and 2015.

He added: "People here have been looking to the high-speed link as a way of increasing their access to jobs, and others have looked to it as a means of bringing in businesses. These price rises are a direct attack on the revival of our local economy."

Thousands of children spend night locked up in police cells

By Marijke Cox

THOUSANDS of children aged under 16-years-old are being held overnight in police cells.

Figures obtained by the Howard League for Penal Reform revealed that in 2008 and 2009 – the most recent statistics available – 2,764 youths were detained, an average of almost four a night over the two-year period.

The charity, which provides a dedicated legal service for young people in custody, said a police cell was not an appropriate place for children and called for the practice to be stopped.

Director of the organisation, Frances Crook, said: "Most children detained aren't serious offenders. It appears children are being held in police cells for child protection reasons, for example when a child is found in the street drunk.

"This could be an increasing response to children in need as local authorities face cuts to children's services.

"We're dealing with children who are in need. However keeping children overnight in a busy, chaotic police station does not protect them."

But Kent Police defended the figures, stating that detention of both children and adults in custody was reviewed regularly to ensure they were being held in accordance with the law and not for any longer than required for police investigations.

Assistant Chief Constable Andy Adams, said: "As with adults, detention of children in custody is authorised for a number of reasons, including to further a criminal investigation, to uncover the identity of any suspects, or because the disappearance of that person would hinder any prosecution.

"The rules for the detention of suspects are set down in law and on every occasion must be authorised by a custody officer."

Chairman of Kent Police Federation, Ian Pointon, said he supported action taken by Kent Police if it ensured the protection of the public.

"It all depends on what they are being held for; if they have committed a crime a decision will be made whether to keep them overnight or not," he said. "I'm in support of what the force says. What I would expect is that people wouldn't be arrested without proper cause.

"If a young person can be arrested the following day then that's something that is probably looked at as a possibility. But if a serious crime has been committed officers can't just wait for a more sociable time to carry out the arrest as this could obstruct the investigation.

"People who commit serious crimes have to be incarcerated to protect the public."

Mr Pointon added: "When people hear the word children they think of eight or nine-year-olds, but that's not usually the case."

The Police and Criminal Evidence Act states children in custody must be given a higher level of care, but Anita Dockley, research director for the Howard League, said the referral process from police custody to local authority accommodation, such as children's homes or centres, is the vital safeguard for children who are charged but not bailed.

"Police admitted to us that requests by them for local authority accommodation are often not met," she said. "This is contrary to international law, which states that no child should be deprived of his or her liberty unless it is a measure of last resort."

Of the 22 forces out the UK's 43 that responded to the charity's Freedom of Information request, Kent had the fourth highest number of overnight child detentions, with Greater Manchester topping the list with 16,957; West Midlands with 12,565; and Merseyside – of which just 2009 figures were available – with 5,142.

If a child is arrested at 11 pm and bailed two hours later at 1 am, for example, this is recorded as an overnight stay.

Ed will make a great PM, insist supporters

LABOUR supporters in Kent have spoken out to back party leader Ed Miliband amid criticism of his first nine months in office.

The former Energy Secretary has been accused of providing weak opposition to the Coalition since his appointment last September, and of coming up with no viable solutions to tackle the country's economic woes.

But party members in Kent believe Mr Miliband may have now turned a corner following a speech on Monday in which he set out his vision of Labour's future policies.

He admitted that at the last election Labour was seen as "the party of those ripping off our society" and promised a renewed focus on tackling boardroom excesses and abuses of the benefits system.

Kent Labour spokesman

Paul Clark, the former MP for Gillingham and Rainham, said: "Of course we didn't get everything right in government, and that's why we needed to step back, take a look at our party structure and policies, listen to people and formulate new plans.

"It was always going to be difficult for him after we suffered such a massive defeat at the General Election, because nobody really listens to what you have to say at first.

"But it's important to take your time in developing new policies because you have to get them right. I think the constant U-turns the new Government is doing on a range of reforms is evidence of that."

Former Dover and Deal MP Gwyn Prosser is a keen supporter of Ed Miliband and his brother David, and said Ed still had his backing as leader.

Picture: PAUL JERRENT

KEEN FOLLOWING: Labour leader, Ed Miliband

He said: "The grassroots Labour party members will always be impatient and demanding faster progress, but you need to bide your time. I think he's a great leader of the Opposition and, when the time comes, he'll make a great Prime Minister."

There are no Labour MPs in Kent, and until last month's local elections every district and borough council – as well as KCC and Medway Council – was run by the Conservatives.

But the party made several gains at the elections, winning Gravesham council and running the Tories so close in Thanet that a 'cross-party arrangement' had to be formed.

New Gravesham council leader Cllr John Burden said: "On a local level we are very optimistic about the future for Labour.

"As far as the national picture goes, I think it was unreasonable for people to expect Ed to come up with a raft of radical new policies less than one year after Labour lost control of a government it had controlled for the previous 13 years.

"But we are united and everyone is supporting what Ed is doing. We feel very confident about the future."

Film gives jurors a virtual guided tour of three cannabis factories

By Ian Read

editorial@kosmedia.co.uk

JURORS at a trial over two men accused of conspiring to produce cannabis and perverting the course of justice, were shown film giving them a guided tour of three factories producing drugs worth millions of pounds.

They saw drugs grown in a barn at Wooton, between Canterbury and Dover, in a former Renault showroom in Coombe Valley Road, Dover, and on the Joseph Wilson Industrial Estate, Whitstable.

Art gallery owner John Read, 53, of Marine Parade, Whitstable, and business partner Roger Coombs, 70, of Crawley, Sussex, deny three counts of conspiring to produce cannabis and perverting the course of justice.

Detective Constable David Godden commented as the jury at Canterbury Crown Court were shown the sophisticated set up in all three locations. They saw cannabis being grown on an 'industrial scale'. All three sites were linked to Read, who it is claimed used his gallery Artank as cover for his crooked activities.

Read's alleged fledgling criminal empire came to police attention in August 2009 and they raided Higher Shelvin Farm, Wooton. They found a barn packed with cannabis plants worth £1 million with associated lighting equipment, fertiliser and a rental agreement linking Read to the barn.

It's claimed he switched production to a former Renault dealership in Coombe Valley Road, Do-

THE CASE CONTINUES:

The jurors at Canterbury Crown Court are hearing the case of two men who deny conspiring to produce cannabis ver, and an industrial unit owned by Tesco on the Joseph Wilson Industrial Estate, Whitstable. Both buildings were also linked to Coombs.

At the former car showrooms two Vietnamese teenagers employed as gardeners were arrested.

The film showed how the Motorline premises were being converted. New rooms were built inside and holes bashed into walls to take cabling.

When police raided the premises in April last year they found cannabis in various stages of growth, fertiliser and instructions in Vietnamese on how to tend the plants.

More rooms were being converted to grow the drugs and the youths lived in the warehouse.

In all, drugs with a street value of £3.3 million were seized.

Ian Hope, prosecuting, said the pair paid £29,000 rent for the ex-showrooms. This time Read tried to distance himself from operations by ensuring his name was not on the leases.

He said he used the garage to store art work but had no other connection.

Mr Hope said: "There are plenty of people involved in the conspiracy – clearly there was an involvement of an organised crime group from Vietnam who were there to produce the cannabis."

As police closed in, Read tried to cover his tracks by forging and faking documents.

Recorder John Gower gave jurors a stern warning that the only evidence they should follow was that presented before them in court, he said.

The case, expected to last three weeks, continues.

for someone like Ellie Goulding, but that's not the only cost. As she's there it means the stage will need to be bigger, and that adds to it all.

"Plus, with bigger crowds, we invest even more in health and safety. We will do everything to ensure that everyone who attends has a safe and secure time and enjoys the music, local food and comedy we have on offer."

And Mr Baker says there is no sign of the festival losing the momentum it has gathered over recent years and says he has a 20-year plan for its growth, as well as paying tribute to city council officers who have helped along the way.

It brings a major boost to the local economy with around half of those attending set to come from outside of Kent – with tickets sold as far as Scotland and Wales.

Mr Baker added: "We always look to use local suppliers. And those with stalls are told the food they provide must be sourced locally. We want to keep the money in Kent. Our suppliers have always stuck by us and it is thanks to their generosity and goodwill we have got where we are."

Meanwhile, the Comedy and Playhouse stages saw the likes of Robin Ince – close friend of Ricky Gervais – and Deal's very own cabaret and variety events company, The Private Widdle Social Club, added to the line-up.

Crackdown on coastal crime

A CRIMEBUSTING initiative designed to crack down on trouble along the coastline between Seasalter to Reculver has been launched.

Coastal Eye aims to stop incidents of anti-social behaviour in areas by calling on members of the scheme to be proactive in keeping an eye out for trouble.

Led by the local Neighbourhood Watch association and supported by Canterbury Community Safety Partnership, it is supported by both the police and city council.

David Hayward, chairman of the Canterbury and District Neighbourhood Watch, said: "The coastal environment presents a unique challenge to crime prevention. Therefore it is vital that the police and the coastal community work together as closely as possible to share information in order to prevent and detect crime.

"The intention is to share information in order to work together even better to tackle issues such as criminal damage, theft and anti-social behaviour."

Frank Catholic comic preparing to quiz Archbishop at The Gathering

COMEDIAN Frank Skinner will chat candidly to the Archbishop of Canterbury in September as part of this year's The Gathering.

The two-day event takes place on September 16-17 and provides a host of events for church members, from talks to workshops, which the last time it was held, in 2009, attracted over 1,000 people.

And one of the highlights will be practicing Catholic Mr Skinner hosting an 'In Conversation' event with the Archbishop, Dr Rowan Williams.

Mr Skinner is best known for his chat show and TV comedy work with David Baddiel – which also spawned the Three Lions song which has become the unofficial anthem of the England football team.

It follows in the footsteps of an event two years ago, when Private Eye editor and Have I Got News For You star Ian Hislop chatted to the Archbishop.

Meanwhile, visitors to the cathedral will be in for a shock on Friday when the Bishop of Dover, the Right Reverend Trevor Willmott, will join a 30-foot model whale outside the site to launch the sale of tickets for The Gathering.

The whale will be back for the 'all-age' day on September 17, which will include seminars, talks and activities for children and adults. The whale comprises of a special chamber inside which seats around 20 people, and will

Adults can participate in seminars and workshops on Christian faith, including sessions with writer Adrian Plass, community theologian Ann Morisey, New Testament scholar Paula Gooder and a discussion between the Bishop of Dover and Bishop of Rochester.

On the Friday, there will be a keynote address by MP Frank Field and a Question Time-style debate with Bishop Trevor, Visit Kent's chairman Amanda Cottrell, Matthew Taylor, CEO of the Royal Society for the Encouragement of Arts, and Philip Blond, director of the think tank ResPublica.

Meet your 'cost-efficient' MPs

By Mathew Beech

mathew.beech@archant.co.uk

FIVE Kent Tory politicians have been named among the top 50 most cost-efficient MPs

Mark Reckless, the MP for Rochester and Strood, was the highest ranked Kent MP, coming 12th according to the Commons Performance Cockpit.

The website takes the wages and expenses of each MP and compares them to the number of votes they have made in the House of Commons.

Mr Reckless cost voters an equivalent of £281 per Commons vote.

He said: "I am pleased to have been recognised for providing good value, although I believe the best way for providing good value for my constituents is by standing up for what I believe in."

Rehman Chishti, MP for Gillingham and Rainham and Tracey Crouch, MP for Chatham and Aylesford, came 21st and 30th respectively, while Dover and Deal MP Charlie Elphicke and Damian Collins, MP for Folkestone and Hythe, also featured in the top 50.

At the other end of the scale, the only Kent MP who appeared in the bottom 50 was Thanet North's Roger Gale.

He said: "My voting record is low in comparison to a lot of other MPs because I am the senior member of the Speaker's panel of chairmen."

"We work on number of bills, including the finance bill and we are currently working on the Armed Forces bill, but once you have chaired a bill, you can't vote on it.

"This includes all the amendments so you can easily miss 20, 30 or 40 votes."

Mr Gale said his costs are high because he uses his Broadstairs office, rather than one in Westminster, incurring bills and expenses which are paid for in London.

Mr Gale added: "The team I have do an outstanding job. We process more than 150 communications everyday and deal with our post within 24 hours."

"We offer a better service by being in the constituency and I do not have a backlog."

"I am not concerned about some website, because it is meaningless, but it is things like this that help MPs to get a bad name."

Ian Kent, director of Key Business Insight, the company behind the website, said it had taken publicly available data and made it easier to understand.

He said: "It gives you a chance to look at the broader picture and shows the results MPs achieve for the money they are being paid."

"We are limited by the available data and you can remove speakers from the lists, but some of the good work politicians are doing does not produce data and this is data driven."

"We do what we can to avoid making it misleading and we are happy for people to tell us more information or if we have anything wrong."

Funeral for 'one in a million' marine killed in Helmand explosion

THE funeral of a Royal Marine killed in a bomb blast in Afghanistan was held on Thursday.

Lt Ollie Augustin, 23, from Dartford, was killed alongside Marine Sam Alexander, 28, of Plymouth, on May 27.

The two men, both of 42 Commando, were killed in the Loy Mandeh area of the Nad-e Ali District of Helmand Province as they searched a compound.

He was leading a patrol when the device exploded.

Lt Augustin's funeral service was held at St Martin of Tours Church in Eynsford.

The former Dartford Grammar School pupil was described by colleagues as a "one in a million friend".

Defence Secretary Dr Liam Fox said Lt Augustin was a "natural leader who led from the front and set a fine example for those that he worked with".

His parents Jane and Sean said: "His warmth and humour lit a room and infected all around him. He dealt with people in a thoughtful and compassionate way."

POLICE

Kent Police to merge IT unit as it battles to save £50m from budget

KENT Police is to merge its IT department with those of three other forces as part of ongoing attempts to save £50 million.

The new unit will be known as East Coast IT Services and will comprise about 375 members of staff providing computer support for more than 18,000 employees in Kent, Essex, Suffolk and Norfolk.

Savings of £3 million-£4m are expected to be made over four years, in addition to savings of nearly £6m already made in a collaboration between Kent and Essex's IT departments.

IT director Andy Barker said: "There are huge benefits to be had in joining up IT provision and services."

"Behind the scenes IT has always had a vital role in operational policing, giving officers and staff the tools to do the job efficiently and effectively."

"Aligning IT functions across forces operating different processes and procedures is not a quick job. But, longer-term, the benefits are huge, both in terms of making financial savings to protect the frontline and in making our technology do more to support the demands of modern policing."

Kent Police is currently battling to save £50m over the next four years due to a 20 per cent cut in Home Office funding, which is expected to lead to a loss of about 500 officers and 1,000 support staff.

The force is undergoing a major restructure as a result, which will see a reduction in the number of policing areas from six to three.

Meanwhile, Medway Council has appointed Cllr Craig Mackinley to sit on the Kent Police Authority, and reappointed Cllr Paul Godwin who is the current chairman of the watchdog's professional standards committee.

KPA chairwoman Ann Barnes said: "I'm delighted to welcome Paul back to the authority. He has already given four years of valued service and brings a great deal of experience with him."

Murder trio locked up again following retrial

By Steve Knight

steve.knight@archant.co.uk

THREE thugs have been sentenced to life after a retrial found them guilty of murder.

Kelvin Horlock, 33, from Strood; Bill Saunders, 30, from Gravesend; and Trevor Lees, 38, from Northfleet; were convicted in 2009 of killing vulnerable alcoholic Ted Shaxted, but a retrial was ordered following an appeal last year.

However, following a six-week trial and five days of deliberation by the jury at Maidstone Crown Court, all three men were found guilty once more, last Tuesday.

The court heard how Mr Shaxted had spent the afternoon before the attack with Horlock's aunt, who lived with Horlock's mother. While drunk he stole the latter's car keys and drove away with her dog, only to crash vehicle shortly after.

He was arrested and bailed to appear at a later date, but Horlock and his friends took the law into their own hands.

The next day, December 2, 2007, they burst into Mr Shaxted's flat in Northfleet and kicked and punched him all over his body. Ambulance staff were only notified later that evening when a neighbour found him slumped on his sofa, covered in blood.

Det Insp Gavin Moss said: "This murder showed a high level of brutality. It has been a painstaking investigation to bring this case to court and I am delighted with the verdict."

"The investigation process itself was enhanced enormously by the support of the community, and I would like to express my gratitude to them."

Judge Jeremy Carey sentenced all three men to life in prison and recommended that Horlock serve 15 years, Saunders 12 years and Lees 12-and-a-half years, before being eligible for parole. All three men had denied murder.

Mr Shaxted's family said in a statement: "We are very happy with the verdict. It has been a hard journey for us but we feel Ted has now received justice."

A fourth man – Gravesend resident Martin Service, 35 – also stood trial but the jury was unable to reach a verdict.

He now faces a third hearing.

Ian Fleming's wartime film is a boost to county's economy

ACTION thriller movie Age of Heroes, which was released on DVD this week, generated £42,800 of inward investment for Kent as a result of filming in the county.

The film stars Sean Bean, Danny Dyer and James D'Arcy and is based on the real-life events of Ian Fleming's 30 Commando during World War Two.

The unit was one of the most secretive and respected of the Special Forces regiments in the British Armed Forces.

James Bond author Fleming lived in St Margaret's Bay, and Kent features in several scenes in the 007 novels.

Age of Heroes captures the mentally and physically gruelling training endured by the troops before they are assigned to a dangerous mission behind enemy lines in occupied Norway, which doesn't go according to plan.

Kent County Council's Kent Film Office supported the project with an investment of £20,000 from the Kent Development Fund.

And officials say that in return, inward investment of £42,800 has already been generated from the cash, such as using a local pub as a location base and using local crew and extras.

Filming took place at the World War

STAR QUALITY: Sean Bean took part in the filming at venues across the county

Two bunker in Gravesham, the Connaught Barracks in Dover which was used as a camp, and some driving shots were filmed around Pluckley.

The crew approached the Kent Film Office in February last year and filming took place in April and May, 2010.

Kent County Council cabinet member for customer and communities Cllr Mike Hill, said: "Kent has fantastic filming locations and once again, we're the location of choice. We know that supporting film in the county brings a real boost to our economy."

Bus cuts are the right thing to do, says education chief

By Marijke Cox

marijke.cox@archant.co.uk

COUNTY Hall's education chief has called the scrapping of free grammar and church school travel as the "right way forward", despite overwhelming opposition.

Cabinet member for education, learning and skills at Kent County Council, Cllr Sarah Hohler, said the authority was "not able" to continue subsidising the bus service due to pressure on the public purse.

KCC has a legal duty to provide free home-to-school travel – costing £14 million a year and worth more than £450 per child – when the nearest appropriate school is more than three miles from a pupil's home.

But in many cases parents opt for grammar or church schools that are not their nearest and KCC, despite not being legally obliged, has until now paid for the travel.

Plans were put forward to stop the provision for pupils who start at a grammar or faith

TRAVEL: Government cuts have been blamed for the proposals school from September 1, 2012, if it is not their nearest secondary school, although extra help would continue for low income families.

Despite overwhelming opposition in the consultation, which received more than 1,200 responses – around 90 per cent of which were against – cabinet members are expected to vote in favour on June 20.

Cllr Hohler said her view was that it was the right way forward despite opposition.

"I recognise that some have said they would like us to continue to keep providing a free service to all, but we are simply not able to do this," she said.

"KCC has produced a budget to deliver £160m of savings over the next two years. Part of this will include a reduction in the school transport budget."

Instead, the councillor recommends the Kent Freedom Pass, which provides bus travel for 11-16-year-olds for a one-off annual fee of £100. This week, KCC announced that young carers aged 11-16 will get a pass for free.

AGRICULTURE

Late rain saves farmers from catastrophe

By Mathew Beech

mathew.beech@archant.co.uk

THE recent rainfall has been welcomed by Kent farmers who were just days away from an agricultural catastrophe.

The rain at the start of June, which saw more than two inches fall in about 10 days, has been vital to farmers who have been severely hit by the dry spring.

Cereal crops have been smaller and weaker than expected, while fodder for livestock has struggled to grow in the parched soil.

The heavy rain has provided some relief to the farmers, although they are still expecting to see their yields for the year fall and costs increase.

Kevin Attwood, who owns Down Court Farm in Doddington, near Sittingbourne, believes the rain was just in time.

The 51-year-old arable farmer said: "There will still be a loss as the crops are thinner and weaker than they need to be, but it has stopped things getting worse as we were going downhill fast.

QUENCHED THIRST: The June rains saved some crops, but farmers are still hoping the dry spell does not return "For spring crops, such as barley and wheat, it came at a critical time because due to the dry weather they have no depth of rooting and this gave them a boost.

"The rain was our saving grace and it came at the last critical moment.

"It stopped things worsening, which would have been a catastrophe."

Livestock farmers have also been suffering as they are struggling to grow enough fodder for their animals.

In the 'agricultural drought' they have been unable to grow enough maize or grass, which is used to feed the animals through autumn and winter.

If the dry spell returns, the second opportunity for fodder to be grown and harvested could be missed, forcing farmers to buy in a nutrient-rich, cereal-based feed.

With drought pressures already on cereal crops, it is expected the costs of the animal feed could go up, leaving farmers with some tough decisions over the scale of their operations later in the year.

Mr Attwood said: "It is up to them to work out how much they can afford through the winter. They will have some difficult decisions to make, such as how many breeding animals they will keep into the spring."

The situation for Kent farmers is brighter than for neighbouring farmers, both in the UK and across the Channel.

The rainfall that has proved to be a saving grace here has not fallen with the same intensity or at the same point in the crop cycle to provide the benefits in East Anglia or in France.

Mr Attwood added: "The cereal crops there are likely to be down by 30 per cent, while here in Kent it is likely to be much nearer 10 per cent. That rain was significant and has helped us tremendously."

The Met Office have said there are no prolonged dry periods forecast for the next month, with some unsettled weather bringing showers and the odd prolonged period of rainfall in the South East.

STREET CLEANING

Shopkeepers sweep as council cuts deep clean

By Mathew Beech

mathew.beech@archant.co.uk

SHOPKEEPERS and residents have been encouraged to clean the streets because it is too expensive for the council to do the work.

The Faversham Town Marketing Group raised the issue of the dirty streets with the town council.

Cllr Mike Gates said: "The issue of cleaning the streets cropped up.

"As a town council we work with Swale Borough Council and with the financial cuts that are being made, we do as much as we can.

"Deep cleaning of the whole Faversham town area would cost £10,000, which is very expensive."

The deep clean of the streets would remove ground-in dirt and chewing gum stuck to the floor, but due to limited town council resources, they would not be able to afford the thousands of pounds required to clean the whole of the town centre.

To reduce the costs of the clean up but to still give the town a spruce up, councillors have encouraging shopkeepers to clean the streets themselves.

Cllr Gates added: "We may target certain areas but we need to keep the pressure on Swale Borough Council.

"Everyone can do their bit, and we have been for some time. We have done some litter clean ups with youth groups and the idea is to try and make people feel positive about the town.

"On the clean-up days we have people out with brooms and plastic sacks picking up the litter, which sends out the right signals, encouraging people to clean the streets is the next step."

The aim of the campaign is to boost public morale about the town and to ensure it is looking at its best, despite the lack of a deep clean.

Teresa Heselden, who owns Heselden Hats and General Miscellany, in West Street, is one of the shopkeepers

DO IT YOURSELF: The public are being asked to clean their own streets

ers who already cleans the street outside of her shop.

She said: "When I opened up, I had everything totally painted and completely cleaned, as I have a lamppost outside, I wash that everyday too. It is about keeping the street nice and it can snowball from there.

"At this end of West Street, you can see all the shop owners outside in the morning with their brooms and it is quite sociable. It generates a sense of community and it's about taking pride in where you live and work."

Cllr Gates added: "It's a bit of nostalgia, having the greengrocers or the butchers in their aprons going out and sweeping up. We are all trying to do that, tapping into what is now called the Big Society."

CRIME

Young inmates are left to 'sleep through their sentences'

PRISONERS at a Youth Offenders' Institute are "sleeping" through their sentences according to a new report.

Inmates at HMYOI Rochester were found to be spending too long in their cells, some being locked up for up to 23 hours a day.

Nick Hardwick, chief inspector of prisons, visited the site, which holds 631 men aged 18 to 21, in February.

He said: "My overwhelming impression was of young men sleeping their way through their sentences."

When not locked away, the men were often faced with mundane activities, such as lining punnets with bubble wrap.

Violence was also an issue, increasing from 16 incidents per month in 2009 to 20 per month in 2010, while the high use of force by staff, with 320 incidents last year, is also criticised.

However, the report does show that most of the prisoners feel safe and have a good relationship with the staff, while drug use is low. The resettlement programme was praised, too.

Mr Hardwick said: "Rochester needs to strike a better balance between the demands of security and the requirements of a positive regime."

Michael Spurr, chief executive officer of the National Offender Management Service, said: "The governor and staff are working to minimise violence and use of force, and improve purposeful activity and services."

TV date for choristers of rock

By Steve Knight

steve.knight@archant.co.uk

WEMBLEY Arena was the grand stage for more than 500 Kent singers due to star in a new ITV1 documentary series.

Members of the Rock Choir organisation from across the county belted out a number of tunes at the world famous concert venue as part of the Choir that Rocks programme, which started on Thursday.

They were joined by more than 6,000 singers from other parts of the UK, all of whom have helped the group expand into one of the most popular leisure pursuits in the country.

East Kent branch leader Jamie Speed explained the appeal of the Rock Choir phenomenon.

He said: "We're all about singing and helping people to have a good time. We get people from all walks of life coming together, some of whom are suffering from a bit of misery in their lives and want to be helped through the hard times. It's hard not to be inspired when you take part in something like this.

"We get some amazing singers and others who don't consider themselves to be that good, but when they come together and create that one great sound it doesn't matter."

Rock Choir was founded in 2005 by Surrey-based singer/musician Caroline Redman Lusher, and now consists of 132 separate choirs and more than 8,000 members across the UK. They sing pop and gospel numbers.

Kent has groups in Ashford, Bexleyheath, Bromley, Canterbury, Deal, Folkestone, Gravesend, Kings Hill, Maidstone, Orpington, Rochester and Sevenoaks.

The ITV1 documentary is a three-part series that follows Caroline and her team in the build-up to the mass performance at Wembley.

Part festival, part fete... here comes Lounge on the Farm

By Chris Britcher

chris.britcher@archant.co.uk

IT is said that if all those who claim to have attended the very first ever Glastonbury Festival back in 1971 had actually been at the Somerset site, the crowd would have been about 100,000.

In truth, of course, the actual figures were close to 1,500.

But then being in on something new and exciting, something which would grow into a colossus, is always tempting for the serial fibber.

Yet right on our doorstep this summer, there is an event entering just its sixth year, which has all the hallmarks of a Glastonbury in the making.

It may never quite grow so huge – and there's a compelling argument to suggest small is, indeed, beautiful, but Canterbury's Lounge on the Farm has found a niche in the ever expanding, many would say over-crowded, festival scene. And it is doing so by playing a card which has the word 'Kentish' scrawled in 10ft high letters.

A blend of ages, musical styles, and almost an equal emphasis on food and drink – all of which is locally sourced or produced – has created an intriguing melting pot of part-festival, part-village fete which hints at a very rosy future.

Shepherd Neame brews a special Festival Ale for the occasion, and the line-up of food and drink outlets reads more like an upmarket food hall, with the likes of the Goods Shed, Griggs of Hythe, Dargate Dairy, Godmersham Game, and Ripple Farm Organics, peddling their wares at the event.

What's more, the comparisons with Glastonbury come fast and furious. It too takes place on a working farm, its first event six years ago drew 1,200 people, it doesn't take its lead from corporate requirements, but a desire to put on an artistic and enjoyable event, it attracts a range of ages and demographics and there's even the fact the man who launched it wants his daughter to take over when he retires.

"You'll see six-year-old children and 60-year-olds running around and enjoying themselves," explains Sean Baker, 41, the DJ-turned event founder and co-organiser. "It's the very essence of what we're about."

"We wanted to involve the community – so it felt like their festival. Then when my business partner, Victoria Hazell, came on board and she had an angle on the food – using local produce."

"When we started no-one else was doing that. Within two years, others were following our lead – but we had a head-start on them. And it seems to work."

"It's a very Kentish festival. But that's the thing about Canterbury. When people visit they feel welcomed, you don't get that at many festivals. You don't get the local community taking part. It's like a large village fete."

In fact, over half the tickets have been snapped up by Kent folk so far, but with others coming from Scotland and Wales its reputation is definitely growing.

As we talk Mr Baker is sitting in The Farmhouse, the bricks and mortar venue in Dover Street, Canterbury, which he runs. It takes the essence of the festival – staged a 15-minute walk away in Merton Farm – and plonks it in the city centre. Even on a chilly and rainy Friday afternoon, the place is busy. The restaurant insists on food from a 20-mile radius, the bands performing are, more often than not, local, and there is an easy-going atmosphere.

He's taken Lounge from humble beginnings to what will be its biggest ever event next month. After splashing out on some big names as headliners – Ellie Goulding, Echo and The Bunnymen and The Streets head a strong supporting cast – they are confident of this year hitting the magic 10,000 crowd mark. A figure, significantly, which should, finally, see it turn a profit.

"We made money on the first," explains Mr Baker, "but not since. You need to grow to that size to succeed. Each year we have an extra 1,000-1,500 but you need to get to 10,000 to make the festival work financially. You need the bigger acts to pull in the people."

This year saw a significant move behind the scenes. To help ease the financial burden, organisers teamed up with investors – London-based industry professionals – and it has proved not only a successful formula but one which has taken an awful lot of the strain off the shoulders of the two organisers.

"Putting this together does take over our lives. It is very stressful, although, I have to say, I like it in a perverse way."

A team of six in Canterbury, and 10 in London now prepare the event, which has become something of a unique tool in the local tourism industry's arsenal.

It has won praise from far and wide, with a London PR firm whipping up glowing reviews in the past from the broadsheets and music press.

It's certainly come a very long way from its humble beginnings.

"Back in 1997, I ran a club night with my DJ partner Rob Cooper at Studio 41 in Canterbury, called Lounge Originals. We did that for five years," explains Mr Baker. "I used to help with the St Augustine's Street Festival too. I bumped into the farmer at Merton Farm and he said come and talk about doing something there.

"Truthfully, I thought after that first year 'we could do this'. In the back of my mind I had a plan to get it to three years. I knew I had to get it to a certain level recognised around the country.

"I see this going on for many years. We've created something special and I think we can get it better and better."

DANGER ZONE: Older female drivers committed the most offences at level crossings, cameras showed

ROADS

County's drivers among worst in South East for jumping level crossings

By Marijke Cox

marijke.cox@archant.co.uk

A CAMPAIGN aimed at cutting dangerous driving at level crossings has exposed Kent as one of the worst counties for offences.

Findings from an initiative involving police camera vans located by level crossings revealed there were 195 prosecutions since the scheme was launched in January.

It put Kent as the worst area in the South East behind London, despite a highly visible presence at crossings.

Sandwich was highlighted as one of the towns with a high number of offences and 51 prosecutions, but a Network Rail spokesman admitted some areas were more heavily monitored.

The camera initiative looks to curb dangerous activity at level crossings where motorists often jump lights, drive through barriers as they come down, hit barriers, or obstruct yellow boxes. Female motorists aged 50-65 committed the most offences in the South East.

Of the recorded incidents in the South East, there were 31 vehicles almost hit by a train, 77 near misses by pedestrians, 58 cases where vehicles struck barriers, and two hit by trains.

Network Rail's director of operational services, Dyan Crowther, said: "The camera vehicle has proved what we always believed; that far too many people are misusing level crossings. Although the initial trend shows older people are responsible for the highest number of offences, all ages misuse crossings.

"Our aim is to deter them all rather than prosecute. We hope those caught will change their behaviour, and along with our other activities we'll see a reduced impact on passenger services and the cost of these crimes on the running of the railway."

A new sat nav phone application raising awareness of level crossings has been launched in a bid to tackle the problem.

Supt Andrew Ball, from British Transport Police, said: "When people ignore the warnings there can be fatal circumstances.

"We understand that waiting at a crossing can be frustrating, but warnings are there to protect the public from an incredibly busy rail network."

Mrs Crowther added: "Motorists who jump the lights or smash into barriers as they try and beat them coming down can cause great disruption and cost to the network, so we're always looking at new ways to reduce the risk of incidents."

COURT

OAP fakes own death for insurance pay-out

A PENSIONER from Petham has admitted faking his own death to cash in on an insurance pay-out.

Anthony McErlean, 66, of Swarling Hill Road, had concocted an elaborate ruse where he pretended to be his wife, claiming he had died following a road smash in Honduras on December 6, 2009.

Kent Police were alerted to the scam by the Insurance Fraud Bureau after his insurance company became suspicious.

Officers arrested McErlean and found him in possession of a credit card in the name of Green.

Police discovered McErlean not only faked his own death, but had been claiming pensions relating to his father-in-law from a previous marriage, who had died in March, 2007. Appearing at Canterbury Crown Court, he also admitted claiming pensions relating to someone else.

McErlean had been charged with fraudulently making a claim to ACE European insurance for death benefit of £520,000, fraudulently obtaining a passport, and two counts of theft in claiming pensions of £40,658 and £27,000.

He will be sentenced next month.

QUEEN'S BIRTHDAY HONOURS

Honours a 'wonderful validation' of their work

By Steve Knight

steve.knight@archant.co.uk

CONSERVATIVE grandee Michael Howard heads the list of Kent's great and good recognised in the Queen's birthday honours list.

The former Tory leader – who served as Folkestone and Hythe MP for 27 years before stepping down last May – was given an Order of the Companions of Honour in the annual awards.

His is the best-known political name in the list of just under 1,000 recipients, which includes a knighthood for entertainer Bruce Forsyth and a CBE for Oscar-winning actor Colin Firth.

There was also an honour for Lord Howard's Tory colleague and Medway Council leader Rodney Chambers, who picked up an OBE for services to local government.

Cllr Chambers said: "It is an enormous privilege and a great honour to serve and represent the people of Medway as a local politician."

"I am extremely pleased and very proud to be honoured by the Queen for this in her birthday honours list."

"Although much has been achieved, there is still much to do and I look forward to my years ahead serving Medway and working with our partners to bring prosperity and further opportunity for its residents."

One of the highest honours on the list was a Royal Victorian Order for the outgoing Lord Lieutenant of Kent, Allan Willett.

The Queen gives the Order only to people who have served her or the monarchy in a personal way, and Mr Willett has hosted 95 royal visits to the county since he was appointed in 2002.

It is the second honour to have been bestowed

upon him after he was made a Companion of the Order of St Michael and St George (CMG) in 1997.

Mr Willett said: "Naturally I'm delighted to be honoured in this way, especially as the Royal Victorian Order is the personal gift of the Queen."

Also honoured is the chief executive of Chatham's Historic Dockyard Trust, Bill Ferris, who received an OBE for his services to heritage.

Mr Ferris, 53, said: "I am very surprised and very proud indeed. Honours are things that other people get, and as a team player it still feels a little strange."

"I definitely feel my honour is a reflection of the achievement of a huge number of people since 1984 when the Navy left this great dockyard in the hands of Chatham Historic Dockyard Trust. I hope that in being awarded the honour it is, in part, on their behalf."

Meanwhile, there were celebrations at the University for the Creative Arts – which has campuses in Rochester, Canterbury and Maidstone – as two of its most senior members of staff were both recognised for their outstanding contribution to the creative arts in higher education.

The university's vice-chancellor Elaine Thomas received a CBE, while Cranbrook resident Lesley Millar, a professor of textile culture at UCA Farnham, was awarded an MBE.

Prof Millar said: "I am absolutely delighted to receive this award. I certainly did not expect it and feel totally overwhelmed and grateful."

"The fact it is the Queen's birthday honours list somehow makes it feel more personal and doubly special. It is a wonderful validation of the work and philosophy at UCA that the vice-chancellor and I have both been honoured by the Queen, especially at this time of stress for universities and the higher education sector."

WIN! Tickets to last night of the proms at castle

ONE of the highlights of the summer in Medway – the Castle Proms – will provide the grand finale to this year's Castle Concerts on Saturday, July 16.

The Royal Philharmonic Proms Orchestra will return to perform a selection of classical favourites, culminating in a spectacular fireworks display.

Highlights of this year's programme will include Tchaikovsky's thundering 1812 Overture, the ever-popular Nessun Dorma, and excerpts from Bizet's passionate opera Carmen.

The evening will climax with a finale of all the traditional Last Night of the Proms flag-waving favourites for the audience to join in with.

The orchestra will also be joined by the acclaimed voices of the 80-strong Hertfordshire Chorus. Guest soloists this year are soprano Jo Appleby, and tenor Jonathon Ansell who shot to fame with pop opera group G4 on the X Factor.

LORD LIEUTENANT

Viscount chosen to become the Queen's new man in Kent

By Steve Knight

steve.knight@archant.co.uk

A DESCENDANT of the great 16th century poet Sir Philip Sidney has been appointed the Queen's next representative in the county.

Viscount De L'Isle – who was given the same name as his more famous relative – will become the 34th Lord Lieutenant of Kent when the man who currently holds the position, Allan Willett, retires at the end of August.

And Mr Willett, who was recognised with a Royal Victorian Order in the Queen's birthday honours list, said he was certain his deputy was the perfect candidate to succeed him.

"During his time as my Vice Lord Lieutenant he has done so much for Kent," he said.

"From the start of my term of office Philip has been closely involved in the modernisation of the Lieutenancy and with our campaigns to encourage greater public support for our Armed Forces and their families, promoting volunteering in the community, and celebrating youth achievement.

"He and his wife Isobel have performed a great many public duties and are well known across the whole of Kent for taking a keen interest and celebrating all that's good about the county. I commend them to the people of Kent."

Lord De L'Isle lives at the historic Penshurst Place mansion near Tonbridge, which has been the ancestral home of the Sidney family for more than 400 years.

The former Army major, who retired in 1979 to manage the estate, is currently chairman of the Canterbury Cathedral Trust as well as an honorary colonel of the Kent Army Cadet Force.

He said: "I am greatly privileged that Her Majesty the Queen has appointed me to succeed Allan Willett. I have greatly enjoyed my 15-year apprenticeship as a Deputy Lieutenant, nine of those as Allan's Vice Lord Lieutenant.

"It has been an amazing honour to have played a small part in the modernising of the Lieutenancy that Allan undertook. All the people in Kent will, I am sure, wish to join me in thanking Allan and Anne Willett for their dedicated service and generosity to the county, and not least for the tremendous support they have given to the great appeal for Canterbury Cathedral."

The stated aims of the Lieutenancy of Kent are to provide a focus for county identity, unity and pride; to give a sense of stability; to recognise achievements, success and excellence; and to promote service to others.

Mr Willett, who last year fought a recurrence of prostate cancer, is due to retire on August 24 – his 75th birthday.

AFGHANISTAN

Freed prisoner reveals his Afghan jail hell

By Marijke Cox

marijke.cox@archant.co.uk

A FORMER Army officer locked up in a notorious Afghan prison on false bribery charges has relived the terrifying ordeal which saw him pushed to the brink of insanity.

Almost a year since he was acquitted, father-of-three Bill Shaw spoke to KoS about the circumstances that led to his arrest and the five months of hell behind bars with members of the Taliban and al-Qaeda.

The 53-year-old, whose family live in Dover, was wrongfully arrested in Afghanistan while working for security firm G4S providing protection for foreigners in Kabul. His daughter, Lisa Lucklyn-Malone, a teacher at Whitfield Primary School, launched a campaign to have him freed and he was acquitted in July, 2010.

Mr Shaw has now released a book, Kill Switch, telling the story of his Army life and horrifying experience.

His ordeal started in October, 2009, when he was ordered by the NDS, the Afghan government's intelligence service, to pay for the release of vehicles they had confiscated from his company.

"I was against giving in to extortion, but we had no option. It was either pay the fine, which I thought was legitimate, or lose the vehicles which had very expensive loads on board," he said.

But in the following months Mr Shaw was asked to meet with the authorities to discuss the matter and on March 3, 2010, he was arrested on bribery charges.

"I had been travelling in and out of Afghanistan over that period so had I wanted to leave I could have, but I have pride and would not have run away – that's not the kind of person I am."

Mr Shaw, who received an MBE for his 28 years of service in the Army, was taken to Tawqeeef, a feared detention centre.

"When I went in I was met by a sea of bodies on the floor; everyone just lay where they could."

"I didn't think I'd be in there for long as the British Embassy was working on my case," he said.

"I walked to my 4m x 4m cell where 16 men lived and was introduced to a few inmates; one was an Australian man who was in there for murder – he had been sentenced to death – and the cell leader, a lovely Afghan chap who welcomed me with open arms."

JAIL: Bill Shaw in Tawqeeef with Afghan inmates

"The prison was designed for 150 inmates, but held 550 with just 12 trap toilets."

Mr Shaw was in court three weeks after his arrest, with the judge admitting he thought the ex-pat was innocent.

"I didn't understand why I wasn't been released," said Mr Shaw.

"I got back to the prison and started being threatened by the Taliban. The elders from south Afghanistan tried to protect me, but the British Embassy had me moved to a more secure prison."

"This second place was like my Guantanamo Bay. There was a lot of filth – excrement, spit on the walls. It was like a mental institution."

"There was no writing or reading materials. They shaved my head and I was manacled around the feet. It was like I was a convicted murderer. It was mental torture for me."

"I had no idea what was going on outside. I wasn't allowed visitors except for 30 minutes a week. My company called my family to keep them updated, but they were so worried. I didn't want my family to know what I was going through."

On April 26, 2010, Mr Shaw stood trial and was sentenced to two years in prison, but his daughter had launched a massive campaign with help from MP for Dover Charlie Elphicke.

Mr Shaw was moved to a third prison, the notorious Pul-e-Charki, alongside Taliban and al-Qaeda inmates who put a $10,000 bounty on his head.

"At first I thought surely I was worth more than that; but seriously, if prisoners injured me or killed me they would get what was a few years' salary for them."

"I was kept in solitary confinement for my own protection, but Taliban would walk up and down and spit in my cell and make death threats."

During visiting times, Mr Shaw was told about the national campaign for his release and in July, 2010, he was put before the courts to be told he was free. His Afghan interpreter and co-defendant Maiwand Limar, who has been arrested at the same time, had his sentence reduced from two years to eight months.

"For the first few weeks I was out I didn't really know what was going on," said Mr Shaw.

"I'd spent the last few months being led by the nose without making any decisions for myself."

"While in prison I had started writing a book – mentally though as there were no writing materials – and when I got out I carried on and have just had it published."

He returns to work for G4S in July.

"I won't be going back to Afghanistan – I have my own reasons and my family wouldn't let me."

WATER SAFETY

Third tragedy as campaign starts for river safety

By Steve Knight

steve.knight@archant.co.uk

A WATER safety campaign has been launched following the deaths of two boys in unrelated incidents in the River Medway.

Cameron Sandell, 14, died when his canoe capsized at Teston Lock, near Maidstone, on April 17, and then late last month Alex Chappell, 12, drowned after falling from a rope swing at nearby Tovil.

And there has been a third death since the campaign was launched at the start of the week.

Keith James Brook, 42, of Snodland, died after falling in the River Medway at Maidstone on Monday afternoon.

Kent Police have teamed up with Kent Fire and Rescue Service, Kent County Council, Maidstone council, Maidstone Leisure Centre and the Environment Agency to increase awareness of the dangers of playing near rivers.

Insp Jerry Prodger, of the town's neighbourhood policing team, said: "These tragic events have left us in no doubt that the risk posed by rivers should not be underestimated."

"We will be visiting schools in Maidstone to speak with children directly about the dangers of playing near water and how to stay safe during the summer holidays."

Cllr Sarah Hohler – KCC cabinet member for education – added: "With the summer holidays just weeks away and good weather forecast, it's important to remind children and young people to be safe around rivers and lakes."

Following Alex Chappell's death on Monday, May 30, it was revealed by officers that he had not been a strong swimmer.

His mother Gina Tweddell

LOSS: Alex Chappell died in river and father, Adam Ottaway said: "Words can't explain the emotion and loss we feel. Stay safe our brave boy, we will be with you very soon. You will always be in our hearts and our hearts will always be with you."

In an attempt to prevent any more similar tragedies, Maidstone Leisure Trust – which manages the leisure centre at Mote Park – has stumped up £5,000 to fund swimming lessons for more than 130 primary school children in the borough.

Tom McManus of the Environment Agency, said: "We advise people never to jump into a river. At least 30 per cent of our waterways staff are on standby 24 hours a day, 365 days a year, and are often called out to keep the waterways clear and safe for boat users."

TRANSPORT

Students make protest film to prevent bus service cuts

By Marijke Cox

marijke.cox@archant.co.uk

YOUNG protestors have warned education secretary Michael Gove about the threat transport cuts pose to post-16 students.

Samuel Watkin, 14, a pupil at Oakwood Park Grammar School in Maidstone, was one of a delegation of youngsters who delivered a film to Westminster outlining the fears of young bus users.

He said it was essential that decision-makers looked at the proposed bus cuts from a teenager's perspective.

She said: "We are the ones who will bear the brunt of these cuts because public transport is a lifeline for so many young people who can't drive and can't rely on their parents for lifts."

"I wanted to make this film to show the real issues affecting young people like me."

The short film was created with help from Campaign for Better Transport, British Youth Council, Association of Colleges, Kent Youth County Council,

CAMPAIGN: Alexandra Woods with Samuel Watkin, aged 14

National Children's Bureau, UK Youth Parliament, and the University and College Union.

It highlights concerns over shrinking bus networks and planned above-inflation fare rises for post-16 students, plus fears over the scrapping of Education Maintenance Allowance (EMA), which saw poorer students aged 16-19 given weekly payments of £10-30 a week to help toward transport costs.

Campaign for Better Transport's bus campaigner, Sophie Allain, said: "Young people depend on buses to access education and training opportunities inside and outside of college. If they cannot catch the bus they are seriously disadvantaged.

"We're worried decisions about funding for post-16 students are being made in isolation and it will only be in September that the impacts of all these changes will be clear. By then of course it will be too late."

Plans to provide concessionary bus travel for Kent students aged 16 and above are being worked on at County Hall.

Kent County Council cabinet member for education, learning and skills, Cllr Sarah Hohler, said post-16 transport was an issue raised during visits to schools.

"I am keen students stay in education or training after they finish their GCSEs and do not want the cost of transport to be a barrier to them pursuing their studies," she said.

"I have sought the support of John Hayes MP, minister for further education, skills and lifelong learning. He welcomed the work Kent has been doing to find ways to help young people."

Funding gap for mental illness

Parent Anthony Wright says life expectancy statistics for mental health patients would create a huge public outcry in any other medical field

THE conclusion of a recent study by the University of East Anglia reveals an alarming statistic.

Life expectancy for severely mentally ill patients in Kent is being reduced by up to 25 years due to poor physical health.

Some 2.5 per cent of the population has serious mental illness, and this excludes borderline personality disorder.

So, in Kent, approximately 40,000 people are losing nearly a third of their lives through clinical inadequacy. This deserves headline attention.

Unfortunately, the study does not do a comparison with the rest of the country, but if the same statistic applies this means that in the UK 1.5 million people have this penalty.

If similar figures and circumstances were published for other serious illnesses such as cancer and heart disease there would be public outcry.

But there is not, so we have further evidence of the stigma attached to mental illness. There is no evidence politicians are willing to pick up on this.

The answer, the county's mental health trust (Kent and Medway NHS and Social Care Partnership Trust) has said, is not just closer physical health monitoring but also addressing the underlying mental illness and the resulting involuntary lifestyle from that illness. This needs to be done through proper, fully-assessed, care plans.

Serious mental illness sufferers are incarcerated by their symptoms, which need to be treated with adequate time and expertise not token delivery due to continuous underfunding.

People with mental health problems suffer from positive and negative symptoms which bring with them thought-interference and low self-motivation.

What they need is more empathetic support and less reliance, where possible, on medication which causes weight gain.

More talking therapy is needed and we are short 50 experts in this field in Kent.

Far better presence of support workers is necessary to assertively get them to be active. They need to be proper buddies, not just 'tick a box' support, to give them the encouragement and self-esteem they so desperately need. Not to relatively abandon them in the community leaving them isolated.

It also needs to be mentioned that because of the despair in their lives they resort to self-medication to cope.

This includes alcohol. The chances are they are not alcoholics, but they drink excessively to deaden the pain and despair.

Official figures show 30-40 per cent are in this category, which is called dual diagnosis.

This is a complex area, which must be treated properly and according to NHS guidelines. But the mental health trust, in practice, does not provide an approprate treatment model and instead offers a cheap compromise, more political than clinical.

In Kent, 40,000 people lose a third of their life through clinical failings

A representative from the trust is reported as saying they had simply forgotten about physical wellbeing of patients.

This is difficult to believe when the top four mental health charities, including Rethink and Mind, have been shouting about this for the last decade.

The fundamental problem is that, with serious mental illness, the clinical resources are inadequate to meet caseload. The needs of service users are not being met according to evidence-based treatment.

The less treatment there is for the mental illness, the greater the threat of physical illness.

■ Anthony Wright, of Sevenoaks, has a grown-up son with serious mental health problems. He is also a member of Rethink's South West Kent Voluntary Support Group.

KOS COMMENT

Outspoken bishop is best man for the job

THE Kent Forum appears to have made a wise choice in appointing the Bishop of Dover as its champion for 'putting the citizen in control'.

Far from seeking to avoid conflict, Trevor Willmott has his own forthright views on the Big Society and is clearly willing to share them – exactly what is needed from a man in his position.

The forum is a partnership of councils almost entirely run by the Conservatives, and if the Vision for Kent strategy is to succeed then it needs people who are not afraid to voice opinions the Government might not agree with.

And succeed it must if our county is to prosper in the years to come.

Have a great day no matter what happens

IT'S that time of year again when dads across Kent are allowed to park themselves on the sofa with a cold beer in one hand and a TV remote in the other – in theory at least.

However it turns out, we wish you all a Happy Father's Day.

Head defends expulsions

I read with interest the article by Peter Read on school expulsions and would like to make some observations.

Peter is right that Westlands School has permanently excluded 11 pupils this school year. However, he is wrong to suggest there is a causal link between exclusions and academy status. What Peter fails to mention is Westlands is one of the largest schools in the county with 1,750 pupils. He also fails to point out one of the key reasons for our outstanding levels of performance is the tough line we take on challenging poor behaviour.

At Westlands, permanent exclusion is a last resort and is used when all other practical options have been explored. Before a decision to permanently exclude is confirmed it is ratified by a panel of governors supported by the local authority exclusion officer. In the seven years I have been headteacher the governors have supported every decision made as being the right thing to do.

Each school will have its own approach to managing challenging behaviour. My view is that I am, first and foremost, responsible for all children's safety and their attainment within my school. I believe all children have a right to be taught as free from disruption and poor behaviour as possible. There will always be a small minority of pupils whose behaviour falls significantly outside of acceptable parameters, potentially affecting others' chances of success as well as their health and safety.

I believe most parents want the headteacher to take a strong line on discipline to protect the interests of the majority.

Peter Read, by his own admission, is opposed to new-style academies due mainly to his concerns over their perceived lack of accountability. What he fails to recognise is all schools, are directly accountable to parents, pupils and communities through ensuring all pupils have the right to learn free from the disruptive few.

Giving me the night terrors

I publish the No Night Flights email newsletter Gerry O'Donnell wrote about last week (Letters).

Out of the 1,100 people who subscribe, Mr O'Donnell is the only one who has found it scary. Readers can decide for themselves by going to www.NoNightFlights.info where they can see past copies of the newsletter and sign up for free – if their nerves will stand it!

I assume Mr O'Donnell was exaggerating for comic effect when he said the airport is portrayed as a source of Aids and bulimia, but there's nothing funny about either condition.

We don't invent or embellish facts, as Mr O'Donnell suggests – they are drawn from university research, international government health departments, the World Health Organisation, and so on.

Mr O'Donnell can click the 'unsubscribe' button on the newsletter – that will stop the emails arriving. But it won't stop the facts from being true.

Phil Rose, Herne Bay

Flying flag for isle prosperity

Gerry O'Donnell's letter was just what was needed and what he said about those who do not want an airport here was absolutely true.

Those who have complained are only interested in themselves, and have no interest in prosperity for the island.

Let us hope more and more of those who are in favour of prosperity for Thanet will write in and give their support.

Defend people living in care

Politicians in Westminster are debating the fate of 80,000 disabled people as they decide whether to grant government the power to remove the Personal Independence Payment mobility component, which will be replacing Disability Living Allowance, from people living in residential care. This benefit helps people meet extra mobility costs like an adapted car or accessible taxis.

The Government hopes this will save £160 million out of the £81 billion spending cuts it plans to make by 2014-15. However, whilst the savings may be small in relation to the overall cuts, the impact on individuals will be devastating. Removing this benefit will leave disabled people living in residential care isolated and denied the independence most people take for granted. MPs have the opportunity to stop it.

We are again calling on MPs to remember disabled people, who are being affected by spending cuts in many ways, as they decide the fate of 80,000 people in residential care.

Lessons to be learnt by KCC

As someone who has had direct contact with Kent County Council's children's services over a period of years I can understand why the council leader and the cabinet member want to "leave the blame culture behind and move on". A proper inquiry into the failings would be embarrassing.

The trouble with "moving on" is unless you look carefully at what went wrong – and who was responsible – you are not going to learn the lessons. Here are a few suggestions which seem to have escaped the 'leaders' at County Hall.

There has been too much emphasis, in terms of time, resources, and effort, by politicians and senior officers on 'sucking up' to central government. Similarly, they concentrated on getting good marks out of the Audit Commission, Ofsted, and other regulators, rather than finding out what was actually going on.

Neither councillors or senior officials paid enough attention to what goes on at the frontline. With any customer-focused organisation, attention to detail is so important. The signs of trouble were there when senior officials started to call themselves 'Strategic Directors'. This was a sure sign they thought dealing with performance and delivering a good service was beneath them. In particular, they clearly failed to take seriously complaints from service users. And they followed a policy of mulish obstinacy when it came to releasing information to the public (another sure sign of an organisation with something to hide).

If they had been doing their jobs properly, they would have noticed hard-pressed junior staff were struggling to deal with their caseload of complicated and sensitive cases. They would have spotted too much time was being spent on unnecessary meetings and paperwork. They would have seen that there were too many levels of management not spending enough time on supervising their staff.

Finally, a wider lesson to be learned is there needs to be some distance between councillors and paid officers. The generosity of the ruling group to their officers – in terms of high pay, feeble systems of performance assessment, highly beneficial redundancy arrangements, and so on – suggests an unhealthy relationship.

In this working environment, neither councillors or officers are going to rock the boat. So you end up with the organisation not being honest with itself. As a result, the ratepayers and the clients – the children, their carers, and their families – all suffer.

High-yield bonds carry more risk

QOUR savings are in the bank, earning just over 2pc. A few years ago we were getting four times as much interest, or more. An advertisement from Cornhill Capital is offering 14pc interest on high-yield bonds. Can you have a look at this, please, and let us know whether this would be a safe scheme? We are retired and cannot afford to lose our savings.

ACORNHILL Capital (020 7710 9610) is not some sort of fly-by-night rip-off company that will take your savings and disappear. It is fully licensed by the Financial Services Authority, which has individually vetted and approved its directors. But this is not a safe scheme. It is a high-risk scheme. Who says so? Cornhill Capital itself. If you did invest, your money would go into a basket of high-yield bonds issued by natural resource companies whose shares are traded on the Alternative Investment Market (AIM). What this means in plain English is that your money would be lent to these companies. Bonds are just IOUs. If a company goes bust and has no money or assets, its bondholders lose their investment. Lots of major companies issue bonds. The safer the company, the lower the return it needs to offer in order to raise the cash it needs. A safe company might offer 6pc or 7pc. The fact that Cornhill's scheme offers the prospect of 14pc simply reflects the risks involved. The bonds it buys come from companies in the oil, gas, and similar industries. These are risky areas. And the companies themselves are not giants like BP or Shell. They are not traded on the full Stock Exchange, but on the junior AIM market. Cornhill says: "High-yielding bond transactions should be regarded as a speculative investment with a high risk and are not suitable for everybody." Sensible words.

QI READ your advice about the new National Savings index-linked certificates being a good investment, but I am not sure that I can tie my money up for as long as five years. Are they still worth it if you have to cash in early?

AINDEX-linked certificates are a good investment even if you draw your money out early. And they are a very good investment if you stay for the full five years. The only note of caution is that if you encash your certificates during the first year, you will just get back your own money, with no index-linking and no interest. After that, your money grows in line with the retail prices index, with a top-up equal to 0.5pc interest per year, all tax-free. Nobody can guarantee how the RPI will behave, but a rough estimate is that these certificates will pay about 4pc a year. And yes, they are still worth it even if you take your money out before five years. As long as you have passed the one-year mark, you will still get the index-linking, though the top-up will fall. After one year, for example, you would get index-linking plus 0.25pc.

TONY HETHERINGTON

QCAN you let me know what happened to leisure company Ken Clarkson Ltd? I booked a London theatre break, but after I paid in February it appears the company went into liquidation. Will I get any money back?

AKEN Clarkson Limited failed to file details that were due at Companies House in March, showing who owns the company. This is an offence and often means a company is facing problems. A meeting of creditors was held in April, but it is too soon to say how much money there might be to compensate anyone. To stake a claim, contact Mark Bowen, MB Insolvency, Aston House, 5 Aston Road North, Birmingham B6 4DS (0121 359 6455).

QI RECEIVED an email, saying that DHL had tried unsuccessfully to deliver a parcel, so would I phone to arrange a time. I called, but got a taped message and there was nobody to answer questions, so I got a different number for DHL, but they denied all knowledge of any parcel. I replied to the email, but it bounced back.

ATHIS is a scam and there is no parcel. The number you called will have been a premium rate number and the taped message was designed to keep you hanging on and running up your phone bill.

QMY WIFE and I separated in 2005, and were divorced in 2009. She moved away, but I am still in our old home and now and again I get calls from debt collectors, asking for her. Could I be held responsible for her debts at all?

AYOU could only be held responsible for debts on a joint account or for a loan that you signed for as a guarantor. Debts in your ex-wife's sole name, that you did not guarantee, are her responsibility alone.

Guard against high roaming charges

By Ed Foss

MyMoney 24 writer

SUNSEEKERS and holidaymakers have been warned to check their mobile phone contracts before heading abroad, or face huge bills on their return to the UK.

Users of iPads in particular have been told to look at their roaming charges while abroad.

The summer getaway is just around the corner and while many people are weighing up the costs of a week in the sun, others will be looking for the best option for using their iPads abroad without running up huge mobile broadband bills.

Michael Phillips, product director at Broadbandchoices.co.uk, said: "iPads are incredibly useful to take away on holiday since they allow you to stay in touch, listen to music, watch films and keep up to date with any potential travel issues while you are away. However, even simple tasks like checking your email can become expensive if you are using your domestic iPad tariff to surf while on holiday abroad.

"New rules were introduced in 2010, placing the onus on broadband providers to cap the cost of using the internet while abroad within the EU at €50 (about £44) – but this is still rather expensive, and is only applicable within the EU.

"If consumers are going online in countries just outside the EU or elsewhere in the world, they are exposing themselves to prices and policies that vary massively from one supplier to the next. Roaming costs for iPads aren't necessarily the same as those applied to regular mobile broadband packages."

To avoid roaming charges, first check the small print.

Although EU roaming costs are capped, some providers such as 3 apply a cap no matter where you are in the world, while others offer no cap at all for countries outside the EU.

Find out from your supplier what the rules are for your destination.

Set your own usage cap. If you are concerned that you won't be able to keep track of your surfing while abroad, contact your provider to set a cut-off point.

STAYING IN TOUCH: But using an iPad on holiday could cost a fortune

Use wi-fi when you can. Making use of wi-fi in a hotel, a coffee shop or even a McDonald's allows you to surf for free on a faster, more reliable signal. Even if you have to pay to use a local wi-fi connection, this can still work out cheaper than paying premium roaming rates.

Avoid hidden costs. Turn off applications that use the internet to update your information automatically – for example, tools that keep track of your location and post it to Facebook.

Allowing these to continue running throughout your holiday can lead to huge charges being racked up.

Turn off data roaming. The easiest way to avoid mobile broadband charges while abroad is to turn off data roaming on your iPad.

When you arrive overseas, consider buying a local Sim card that you can adapt to fit your iPad.

It will almost certainly be cheaper than paying roaming rates to your UK provider.

Mr Phillips said: "Anyone planning a staycation this year as an alternative to going abroad should still ensure they are on the best Sim-only plan for mobile broadband on the move."

Cheap insurance may not be best value

MANY consumers have become so obsessed with the price of insurance that they are finding themselves without the cover they need.

That's the main finding of a survey into people's insurance-buying habits, which also revealed that two thirds of us are not satisfied with claims processes or with the size of payouts.

"The cheapest insurance is often not the best value insurance," said John Evans, of online buying group Incaboot, which commissioned the research.

"Of course price is important, but with insurance, as with most things, it's rarely the whole story.

"Merely comparing prices could be a shortcut you'll regret."

The study found that fewer than half of all people who buy insurance are concerned with policy details.

But that attitude can often backfire because 22pc of consumers decide not to make claims because of high policy excesses whilst a further 14pc find the whole claims process too much hassle.

Oldest and poorest hit hard by inflation

OLDER and poorer people have experienced higher inflation on average than richer and younger people over the past decade.

And that difference has been especially marked since 2008.

The poorest fifth of households faced an average annual inflation rate of 4.3pc between 2008 and 2010, whilst the richest fifth experienced a rate of just 2.7pc a year over the same period.

And pensioners, and in particular those dependent on state benefits, experienced higher rates of inflation than non-pensioners.

Researchers at the Institute for Fiscal Studies (IFS), funded by Consumer Focus, found that during the period of the recession, dramatic cuts to interest rates reduced mortgage payments, which tend to be more important for richer households.

At the same time, the prices of gas, electricity and food increased and this hit poorer households harder on average.

Domestic energy prices more than doubled between 2000 and 2010. Poorer households spend on average twice as much, as a share of their expenditure, on energy as richer households.

Research economist Peter Levell said: "Over the past few years relative price changes have tended to hit poorer and older households harder.

"Of course this pattern may well change in the future, but it does mean that poorer households will have fared worse over the period of the recession."

The latest figures from the Alliance Trust Research Centre concur with the IFS findings. The 65 to 74-year-old age group now faces the highest rate of inflation, at 5.2pc, which is nearly a fifth above the consumer prices index rate of 4.5pc.

Shona Dobbie, head of the Alliance Trust Research Centre, said: "Higher food prices have once again hit the elderly age groups the hardest this month.

"We expect that in the coming months higher gas and electricity price inflation will push the inflation rates facing these households even higher."

Workers could be missing out on mileage entitlement

By Ed Foss

MyMoney 24 writer

PEOPLE using their own cars for work could be missing out on their full mileage entitlement following the increase in mileage allowance payments, leaving them out of pocket.

Although the increases came into effect in April, many people who use their own car for business travel have remained unaware their mileage allowance has been increased from 40p to 45p.

The mileage rate for business travel exceeding 10,000 miles remains at 25p per mile, but the change to the initial rate will affect hundreds of thousands of workers.

Michael Muskett, a senior partner with accountancy firm PKF, said he thought the mileage increase had gone largely unnoticed by many people.

"Whether it was lost in the range of national insurance, tax and pension changes which came into force on April 6 we can't be exactly sure, but the mileage rate increase still seems to be news to many business drivers and businesses," said Mr Muskett.

"With fuel prices refusing to fall back following spiralling increases over the past few months, many motorists have been hit hard in the wallet.

"It seems strange they should be missing out on their extra entitlement.

"It is a matter for employers how much they pay their employees for the business use of a private car.

"But employees reimbursed less than the HM Revenue & Customs-approved 45p per business mile by their employer may claim mileage allowance relief up to the new limit from HMRC.

WATCH THAT DIAL: Employees using their own cars for work travel could be out of pocket unnecessarily

"Employees will need to ensure they keep accurate mileage records for any claims."

For example, if an employee drives 3,000 business miles in 2011-12 and receives 40p per mile from his or her employer, he or she is entitled to claim a reduction in taxable income of £150.

Volunteers carrying passengers as part of their volunteering duties will also be allowed to use the passenger payments allowance of 5p per mile per passenger.

This allowance already exists for employees. For people with company cars who receive a car fuel benefit, the base cost to which the relevant benefit percentage is applied increases by £800 to £18,800 for 2011-12.

Mr Muskett said: "This latest increase means that the tax cost of getting free private fuel from an employer can often outweigh the fuel cost savings, so employees should do their sums before deciding whether to take advantage of this benefit."

From April, 2012, there will be increases in the taxable benefit arising in respect of company cars with carbon dioxide emissions of between 100 and 225g/km.

Further changes to the system are planned from April, 2013.

PICK OF THE WEEK

In association with the experts at Moneyfacts.co.uk, we highlight some of the best new products launched this week.

Savings: Barnsley Building Society

A new fixed-rate bond paying 3.5pc to July, 2012, has been launched. Savers can invest between £1,000 and £2m and further additions can be made whilst the issue remains open. Early access is not allowed. The account can be operated by telephone only by savers aged 16 and over.

Why is it good? A review of short-term bonds by Barnsley has seen an increase of 0.2pc to the one-year fixed-rate bond. This deal sits just below the current short-term fixed bond market leaders.

Mortgages: Principality Building Society

Principality has revamped its mortgage product range, with selected fixed rates reduced by up to 0.4pc. Most notable is the new four-year fixed deal at 4.49pc to July, 2015. This product has a loan-to-value (LTV) of 75pc and allows customers to borrow between £5,000 and £500,000. No fee is payable and incentives include a free valuation and for remortgages free legal fees.

Why is it good? This latest fixed-rate deal offers a competitive rate. Borrowers looking to keep initial costs to a minimum will be pleased with the generous incentive package and the fact that there is no arrangement fee.

Mortgages: Northern Rock

Selected rates have been reduced in Northern Rock's latest review. The most eye-catching new deal is the five-year fixed product with an initial rate of 4.79pc to September, 2016. The maximum LTV is 75pc and first-time, second-time and remortgage customers can borrow a maximum of £1m. No fee is payable. Remortgage customers can enjoy incentives of a free valuation and free legal fees.

Why is it good? This product offers borrowers who are looking to keep set-up costs to a minimum a good deal. There are also the options to make overpayments and take payment holidays.

Investments: Cater Allen Private Bank

Cater Allen has launched its Annual Locked-in Return Plan 2. This structured product requires a minimum investment of £5,340 for a six-year term. On maturity the plan will pay 6.5pc for each year the FTSE 100 is at or above the initial index level on the annual observation date. The offer closes on August 5 and has a start date of September 7.

Why is it good? This new issue of Cater Allen's annual locked-in plan again sees a generous potential annual return dependent on the performance of the FTSE 100 – although the maximum return of 39pc may prove difficult to achieve should the FTSE 100 fail to perform, as the absence of a return in any one year will seriously deplete the overall return.

Going global the key to speeding up growth rates

EXPORTS will be key to the recovery of the region, according to the latest trade figures.

ICAEW/Grant Thornton's UK Business Confidence Monitor data shows South East firms' overseas sales have grown steadily since the end of 2009. Companies in the region saw Q2 exports rise by 4.6 per cent year-on-year and forecast growth of 4.9 per cent for the coming year.

Tellingly, this quarter's forecasts are stronger than typically seen before the recession.

Ellen Walsh, a managing partner at Grant Thornton, said: "The private sector is picking up, albeit slowly, and opportunities exist for those looking to international markets where sentiment, growth rates and demand for products and services are higher."

The South East is already the export epicentre of the nation, with its overseas trade figures outstripping any other region in the UK.

Figures from HM Revenue and Customs show South East businesses exported goods worth more than £43 million in the year ending March 2011, up 11 per cent year-on-year.

Lewis Scott, international trade director for UK trade and investment in the South East, said there was room for business across the region to further capitalise on geographical advantage.

"The growth in export business underlines the opportunities for our companies in the global market, feeding the expansion of emerging markets in particular. The position is encouraging, but more companies should be taking advantage of the opportunities," said Mr Scott.

The trade experts' shared belief that increased exports are paramount to the recovery of the region – and UK as a whole – further supports Archant KOS Media's decision to place the International Business Forum at the heart of our Business Week Live event.

The popular business-to-business conference, taking place at the Dover Cruise Exhibition Centre on Wednesday, October 26, will feature overseas exhibitors and associated trade organisations plus delegations of buyers.

Business Week Live project manager Sallie Payne said: "The International Business Forum

"Supported by a range of conference sessions and workshops on exporting and importing, the International Business Forum will open many new doors for businesses.

ADMINISTRATION

Focus failure has knock-on effect

DESIGNER and distributor Proteam UK Limited has entered into administration.

The Tonbridge firm, which supplies leisure products to big retailers such as DIY stores and supermarkets, has appointed FRO Advisory LLP as administrator.

The firm's Jason Baker said: "A large proportion – approximately 35 per cent – of Proteam UK's sales came from Focus, the DIY chain, which itself entered administration in May 2011.

"As a result of the loss of sales from this major client, Proteam UK experienced serious liquidity problems and was unable to continue to trade without the protection of administration.

"There are currently no plans for any redundancies and it is very much business as usual.

"We continue to trade the company as a going concern while seeking a buyer for the business."

Proteam UK began trading in 1991, supplying garden, DIY and camping equipment to stores across the UK.

CUTS ARE NEEDED: David Philpott

TAX

Corporation tax is a burden to business

THE Institute of Directors is calling on the Government to slash corporation tax.

The plea was made after an IoD report found the tax burden on SMEs was holding back business.

IoD Kent chairman David Philpott said a reduction in corporation tax to 15 per cent, or a cut in employers' National Insurance contributions to 10 per cent, would give businesses a much-needed financial boost.

"The private sector in Kent, like elsewhere in the country, is going to have to drive the recovery," he said.

"However, tax burdens remain a real drag on growth. There is limited scope for radical cuts in the short term, but we want the Government to set out plans now to reduce this heavy burden sharply in the medium term to enable businesses to plan better for the upturn.

"Plans to reduce corporation tax rates need to be more ambitious, and the rate of employers' NI contributions needs to come down."

ALCOHOL

Sheps brewery raises concerns

TREASURY boss Justine Greening visited a Kent brewery and vineyard during a fact-finding tour of the county's alcohol industry.

The Conservative 42-year-old, who serves as Economic Secretary to the Treasury, stopped off at Shepherd Neame's Faversham base before heading to Chapel Down, Tenterden.

The Putney MP said: "This was a valuable chance for me to hear directly from across the alcohol industry."

Shepherd Neame chief executive Jonathan Neame said: "We were pleased to see the minister take an active interest in beer and pubs. The visit provided us with an opportunity to reiterate the impact that recent excise increases have had on brewers, licensees and community pubs. We also highlighted some of the challenges we will face in the year ahead.

"While we support the Government's efforts to restore the country's finances, we believe beer tax is an inefficient way to raise revenue and undermines growth and investment."

COMMENT

ALTHOUGH it sounds like the plot of an awful B-movie, cookies are on course to change the world as we know it.

The text files, as opposed to the delicious baked treats, are at the centre of a new privacy law that could have serious implications for e-commerce websites.

Under the new ruling, all online adverts will have to include an icon requesting permission to use cookies – which stores details such as user-names and passwords.

It is unclear how users will respond to this request. But if the suspicious, scam-fearing public refuses to accept the cookie terms, it will have a huge knock-on effect; if click-throughs from the advert to the advertisers' websites fall dramatically, then the amount they are willing to pay the host sites will soon head in the same direction.

This will in turn affect the profitability of e-commerce websites, many of which already struggle to balance the books. In short, the cookies case may force e-companies to readdress their online presence.

If advertising revenue falls away, then they may be left with no choice but to introduce a pay wall – a model adopted by both The Daily Telegraph and News Of The World newspapers – to pass the cost on to their consumers... or close down entirely.

The times they are e-changing.

Scheme helps you harness the sun's power – for free

TWO Secret Millionaires have rolled their free solar-panel deal out across Kent.

Freetricity colleagues Paul Williams and Ben Way – who have both appeared on Channel 4's hit TV show – are offering homeowners the chance to go green for free.

The pair's eco-energy deal sees Freetricity install and maintain the solar panels at no cost to the homeowner, taking the Government's Feed in Tariff (FIT) as payment.

This novel approach has made solar panels more financially viable to residents, who were traditionally faced with a big initial outlay sum and costly maintenance bills.

Freetricity chief executive Paul Williams said: "I'm a great believer in the importance of looking after the environment and I'm delighted that we are able to offer this great deal. By going green with Freetricity you could reduce your electricity bills by around 40 per cent. There really are no catches."

Chief technical officer Ben Way said: "This really is a fantastic offer for homeowners in this area. We launched in Surrey a couple of weeks ago, and this deal has been so popular we decided to start rolling out the business across the South East so that others could benefit.

"Freetricity have had a financial vote of confidence from Lombard Finance, who have backed us to the tune of £10 million. In addition, we have set up a partnership with AVC Group for installation – one of the largest, most reliable and reputable installers in the business who are working in 2,500 homes across the UK every day.

"We are the only solar company in this part of the country able to offer completely free installation and maintenance with no cost to the homeowner. It really is a case of sign up before it's too late."

Location is everything as confidence grows

LOCATE in Kent helped more than 70 companies relocate, set up or expand into the county in 2010-11.

The investment support agency's year-end figures show a total of 73 successes, resulting in the creation of 2,588 new, retained and indirect jobs.

The Thames Gateway welcomed the lion's share of new companies, with 40 per cent of the total figure.

Medway attracted the highest number of companies (15), while Swale took the biggest share of new jobs created (383).

The vast majority of companies setting up home in Kent were UK-based (82 per cent), but Locate in Kent also helped 13 overseas businesses move into the county.

These include logistics firm GBA Services, which set up its South East distribution hub in Ashford, and German solar-energy specialist SunConcept, which opened its first UK subsidiary in Kings Hill.

Locate in Kent chairman Sir Brandon Gough said he was pleased with the agency's results.

"It's been another challenging year for businesses, but it's encouraging to see such a good number of companies still expanding, relocating and starting up in Kent and Medway – and we're here to help them do that as easily as possible," he said.

The agency had 312 'active' projects at year-end, up from 304 in 2010-11.

KCC leader Paul Carter said: "There continues to be a lot of confidence in the county as a business location."

"The recent news that Danish company Vestas plan to build a wind turbine manufacturing facility at Sheerness re-establishes the fact that the area represents an excellent opportunity for investors."

A DATING website has been set up in a bid to help eco-enthusiasts find the soilmates.

The site – ecolovers.co.uk – is the brainchild of Nick Shread, from Maidstone, who launched the online business in April after becoming inspired while spending time on his new allotment.

He said: "About a year ago, my partner Linda and I had secured an allotment space. I realised how welcoming the community was among fellow allotment-holders."

"Then I became aware there were a lot of single people among them."

The driven MD who thinks globally with data storage

LIKE the Romans and the Normans before them, the Document Warehouse has arrived in Kent and is looking at conquering our green and pleasant land.

Having set up home in a 3.6-acre site in Ashford, the South African archive/data-handling firm is already looking at marching north.

Managing director Ryan Hughes said: "We aim at having national coverage within the next 36 months. We're looking at opening a site in or near Birmingham, one up between Manchester and Liverpool and another between Glasgow and Edinburgh – giving us national coverage up the spine of the country."

The company hopes to create some 400 jobs in the process, half of which will be based at its Kent headquarters, but its primary objective is to introduce its offerings to the UK.

Hughes said: "The UK market is predominantly reactive in its approach to document archiving compared with South Africa."

"South African businesses have become accustomed to outsourcing and rely on document storage solution-driven companies to offer a vast array of products and services to them."

"In the UK we have found customers only approach us for document archiving for compliance reasons"

"We're currently focusing on offering the traditional archiving services as companies are only requesting archiving boxes, and we have to compete on that level."

"Once we have built up a relationship with them, we can then inform them about our other products and services to extend our business services and hopefully challenge the market."

The company started out as an office-relocation service in South Africa – moving everything from sensitive data and computer systems to desks from one place to another – but

The BIG Interview

Document Warehouse managing director Ryan Hughes speaks to Business Week editor Simon Robinson about his plans to set up sites across the UK before taking on the markets of Brazil, Europe and Asia.

branched out into archiving as most of its customers looked to offload boxes of old, yet at times required, information.

It was not long before data management became more important to the business than data storage.

Hughes explained: "We soon realised that anyone can store documents – it's the retrieval that needs special care. So we made the decision to sell off the logistics side of the business and concentrate solely on document storage."

"Our USP is that we offer more products and services in the management of our customers' information from creation to destruction, on-site and off-site."

"We have found that off-site archival storage is almost a secondary focus area for us."

On-site we offer and install our own bespoke computer systems we have designed and developed, which includes a full track-and-trace accountability system. We offer a mailroom service to create a paperless environment for our customers, along with a full scanning bureau.

"We also offer outsourced staffing on-site for larger customers, so we effectively run their archives in-house for them, or alternatively we fully train our customers to effect and create functional file plans for their companies."

"It's this diverse range of products and services that sets us apart from our competitors as we offer a full range of business services all under one roof. It's a full turnkey solution."

This all-encompassing model has taken the Document Warehouse across South Africa, a total of seven sites, into neighbouring African countries, the Middle East and Australia.

Hughes said: "Moving into the UK was a calculated risk. With it being such a large capital outlay, we would never have done it if everything wasn't perfect."

"But we feel the market has got huge potential. Just looking at the size of the market, there are 4.7 million SMEs in the UK – we don't have that many businesses in total in South Africa. So if we could convert 5 per cent of the UK market, it would double our South African turnover."

"And we've just won the largest Government contract awarded so far this year, which has given us the boost we needed."

"We feel confident that, by winning this contract, our expectations for the UK market have been correct."

"Regarding future global growth potential, we would like to enter the Brazilian market, across Europe and into Asia within the next six years."

"We're happy with what we've done in the southern hemisphere – it's now time to expand in the north."

South African-born Hughes said he had to adapt to the British approach to conducting business.

"Business is business everywhere you are in the world, but it's the etiquette here that's slightly different," he said. "In South Africa we're a very forward nation, very straight to the point, very direct."

"In the UK there's a lot more finesse, conversation and relationship-building needed before we are able to get down to business."

"In South Africa it's more

STORAGE: Document Warehouse offers a space-saving solution

"What's your bottom line and when can you get it done by?"

"So to a certain degree we've had to adapt to that UK culture, but at the same time we don't want to lose our drive."

Hughes also had to adapt to the weather, moving from the sun-baked South African climate to the rain and cold weather of the winter months in England.

Diplomatically, Hughes said: "The weather doesn't really bother me. I was taught there's no such thing as inappropriate weather, only inappropriate clothing."

"I grasped that concept very quickly."

Science park in green deal

KENT Science Park has gone green thanks to a renewable sources agreement.

The Sittingbourne business park, which is home to 1,200 employees and 60 businesses, will receive 100 per cent of its electricity from Scottish and Southern Energy's (SSE) wind farms or hydro-electric plants.

KSP facilities manager Stephen Moore said: "It is extremely satisfying to be able to say that all the park's power is renewable."

"But we are still looking at ways in which our energy production could be even cleaner, including the possibility of producing our own power on site, using technology developed by scientists working here."

Site director James Speck said: "I'm very happy that we've reached this significant agreement with SSE. Of course, apart from using cleaner, renewable sources, our ultimate goal is to use less energy – that's the real long-term challenge."

KSP consumes more than 11 million kilowatt hours (kWh) of electricity each year. SSE is the UK's largest provider of renewably-sourced energy.

SPECIALIST car manufacturer Caterham has expanded its Dartford operations to build its latest high-performance model.

Cookies ruling could slim e-commerce revenues

By Simon Robinson

simon.robinson@archant.co.uk

A NEW user privacy law could have serious implications for online businesses, according to a Kent website developer.

The new Privacy and Electronic Communications Regulations, which recently came into force in the UK, will make cookies – which store information such as shopping cart details, viewing history and preferences – more visible.

Orpington-based Ecce Media's Brant McNaughton said these new rules could have a negative knock-on effect on advertising revenues.

"Under the new rules, an icon will be required to appear on the advert in question requesting permission to use cookies. Just how invasive these requests will be to users is unclear," he said. "The downside of this will be the possible reluctance of big advertisers to continue to fund advertising campaigns on the current scale if they are rendered somewhat impotent. This may lead to a reduction in the revenues a website brings in through displaying adverts – which may affect the profitability of e-commerce websites."

The rules do not require websites to obtain consent from the user in the case of cookies that relate directly to the provision of a service explicitly requested by the user. This caveat means that the average e-commerce website will not have to change its general nuts-and-bolts operation.

Brant said: "As most e-commerce websites detail the use of cookies to manage and run the shopping cart in their terms and conditions, little, if anything, will have to change to comply with the new ruling."

"The new law states that you must now inform visitors to your website when cookies are used and for what purpose."

"But businesses that rely on advertising on their websites for revenue will no doubt have concerns, and consumers will be hoping these costs won't be passed on to them."

OUT OF THE JAR: The new ruling means website-users have to be alerted to cookies, which Ecce Media's Brant McNaughton says could negatively affect advertising revenues

New face strengthens commercial offerings

GIRTINGS law firm has made a new addition to its growing commercial department.

Experienced corporate and commercial solicitor Patrick McGrath has joined the law firm's Stourside Place offices in Ashford.

The 46-year-old said: "Girtings has a substantial and experienced commercial and corporate team and, based in the heart of Kent, is well placed to advise businesses looking to set up or expand in an area rich in resources, skills and opportunities."

Mr McGrath qualified in 1989 and has previously worked with major law firms in north Kent and London.

Senior partner Christopher Page, who heads the Girtings corporate and commercial department, said: "Patrick's considerable expertise and experience will further strengthen the team and the range of specialist services we offer local and regional businesses."

Conveyancing firm put its stamp on a quality service

FURLEY Page has been accredited as a member of the Law Society's Conveyancing Quality Scheme.

The firm, which has offices in Canterbury, Whitstable and Chatham, secured membership after coming through a rigorous assessment of its residential-home-buying procedures.

Myfanwy McDonagh, partner and head of residential property at Furley Page, said: "CQS status is recognition of the high standards we provide to our residential property clients and is a signal to future home-buyers of the excellent service level, and commitment to our clients, that we offer at what is often a stressful time for many people."

"House-buyers who use Furley Page have the peace of mind of knowing they will receive a reliable, efficient service as recognised by the CQS standard."

PARTNER: Myfanwy McDonagh

Law Society president Linda Lee said CQS improved efficiency with consistent standards and service levels and enables consumers to recognise practices that provide a quality residential conveyancing service.

"Buying a home is one of the largest purchases anyone will make in their life, so it is essential that it is done to the highest standard by a solicitor," she said.

"There are many different conveyancing-service-providers, making it difficult for home-buyers to identify those which can ensure a safe and efficient level of service."

The scheme requires practices to undergo a strict assessment, compulsory training, self-reporting, random audits and annual reviews to maintain CQS status.

It is open only to members of the Law Society and to those who meet the demanding standards the scheme will set and has the support of the Council Of Mortgage Lenders, the Building Societies Association, Legal Ombudsman and the Association Of British Insurers.

To date, more than 1,000 law companies across England and Wales have applied for accreditation, but just 240 have successfully met the Law Society's high acceptance standards.

Volunteers help entrepreneurs

TRIBUTE was paid to 30 volunteers for their work with the Kent Foundation for Young Entrepreneurs.

Kent County Council chairwoman Cllr Paulina Stockell hosted an afternoon tea last week, when she congratulated the team for investing more than 2,000 hours of their time over the past year.

Cllr Stockell said: "We wanted to join the celebration of national Volunteers' Week here in Kent and highlight the special contributions volunteers make to the work of the Kent Foundation for Young Entrepreneurs."

The Kent Foundation was founded in 1985 with the aim of ensuring young people receive the support they need to be successful in starting and growing a business.

Director Paul Barron said: "Volunteering for Kent Foundation is more about quality than doing something for free."

"The Foundation is recognised for having high standards and quality services, which cannot be achieved without the voluntary commitment of so many people in the county."

Building firm shows support

MARGATE firm Chandlers Building Supplies helped in the search for the talent of the future by sponsoring the bricklaying section of Skill-Build 2011.

The competition, which was open to colleges across the South East, challenged students to show off their construction abilities while being marked in areas such as accuracy and use of materials.

Chandlers offered bricklaying tools for the young people who finished first, second and third, with Thanet College student Darren Wiltshire coming second in the 'new entrant brickwork' category.

Chandlers commercial director Richard Skinner said: "The SkillBuild competition offers students a fantastic opportunity to show off their bricklaying ability, and we were delighted to be able to support the event. It's important to acknowledge the skills of young people."

Tutors strike a green deal for environment

By Steve Knight

steve.knight@archant.co.uk

COURSES including solar panel fixing and home insulation are to be offered as part of a commitment to help deliver the Government's Green Deal.

Canterbury Christ Church University and Thanet College have teamed up to help train local people in the skills necessary to support the programme, which offers financial incentives to householders and businesses in return for them improving the energy efficiency of their buildings.

South Thanet MP Laura Sandys (Con) said: "By re-fitting our most inefficient housing stock with energy-saving devices, the Green Deal has the potential to create up to 250,000 jobs."

"However, the UK will need to develop a workforce with real expertise and skills in the renewable sector if it is to realise its environmental ambitions."

"There is no doubt that, as leaders of higher education provision, Thanet College and Canterbury Christ Church are best placed to develop the regional skills capacity."

"We in Thanet need to tap into this emerging green market as Thanet is the ideal regional hub for the Green Deal. By benefiting from the opportunities attached to the Government's green policies, we can help local people into employment and boost Thanet's economic growth and productivity."

In addition to solar panel fixing and home insulation, the proposed new courses will also cover the skills needed to regenerate many listed and historic buildings in the area.

Conservative MP John Hayes – the minister for further education, skills and lifelong learning – visited Thanet earlier this month to learn more about the partnership.

He said: "It is encouraging to see institutions working together to respond to local needs and deliver the Green Deal."

"We are keen to ensure future generations have the right skills to take advantage of the opportunities of the green economy, which will support growth and jobs."

"The Government is committed to delivering a further education system that responds more effectively and efficiently to the needs of learners, employers and local communities, nurturing sustainable growth and social renewal."

The Energy Bill introduced to Parliament last December includes provision for the new Green Deal, which is intended to revolutionise the energy efficiency of British properties.

The Government is establishing a framework to enable private firms to offer consumers energy efficiency improvements to their homes, community spaces and businesses at no upfront cost.

The east Kent meeting was held at Thanet College and was also attended by Ms Sandys, Thanet council leader Cllr Bob Bayford and representatives from the Skills Funding Agency and the Institute for Sustainability.

College vice-principal Dr Andrew Gower said: "We are delighted to be working even more closely with Canterbury Christ Church University to deliver new courses to provide new skills and opportunities for tomorrow's students."

"The visit provided an opportunity to share with the minister the active ways in which Thanet College is meeting the further education skills and training needs of east Kent, by working in partnership with an extensive array of employers."

David Smith, pro vice-chancellor (external relations) at Canterbury Christ Church, added: "We would like to thank the minister for taking the time to meet with us and hear our exciting and innovative plans for the future of east Kent further and higher education."

"Both institutions already deliver courses that enable many local people to pursue careers in our essential public services and regional businesses, which inevitably help to regenerate our communities."

Range of new qualifications could help you gain an edge over the rest

THE Royal Institution of Chartered Surveyors has added seven new specialisms to its range of qualifications.

AssocRICS is the organisation's new technical level professional qualification geared towards those with experience and expertise who want to demonstrate competence in their chosen field.

The new specialisms are in residential property management; building surveying; building control; valuation; land and engineering surveying; hydrographic surveying; and commercial property.

RICS South East spokeswoman Clare Montague said: "Development activity is still strong in Kent but with many businesses putting promotions on hold and pay freezes in place because of the challenging economic climate, candidates with the AssocRICS accreditation are likely to find they have a real competitive edge over others in the industry. Therefore there are big advantages in career progression and new opportunities.

"This unique qualification provides a whole new range of professionals working within the industry the way to gain a recognised, world-leading accreditation and access the many resources and learning opportunities that the world's leading body can offer."

Students are in good shape after MidKent

A SURVEY of former MidKent College students has revealed that a high proportion progress to higher education or employment in the year after their training.

Conducted on 1,296 learners at the start of 2011, the report shows that 88.41 per cent of those who left the college last July have already secured employment, completed a gap year or re-enrolled at another college or university.

The overall findings of the survey indicate that student destinations for the college are "outstanding" as advised by the Framework for Excellence.

A further 56 students (four per cent) were classed as having a "neutral destination", including those who are caring for a family member, temporarily sick or disabled, doing voluntary work or not needing to work.

Spokeswoman Heather Collingwood said the results would be unsurprising for those who work at the college.

She added: "We do our best to keep in contact with our former students so we know they often move on to some pretty impressive things.

"Just last week we learned that one of our most recent leavers, Ben Brice, has secured work as a chef at Claridge's Hotel in Mayfair, London.

"This is an incredible achievement for someone who has only just finished his course in hospitality and catering. Ben's lecturers are very proud of him."

Eighteen-year-old Ben, from Hoo, near

SUCCESS: Chefs Richard Phillips and Ben Brice Rochester, began work at the five-star hotel last Month. He was previously photographed alongside celebrity chef Richard Phillips (above) when he opened the college's Pavilion restaurant earlier this year.

Meanwhile, college students attended a higher education fair in Medway with the University of Kent, Canterbury Christ Church and the Open University among the exhibitors.

Held at MidKent's Medway campus, they were able to find out more about university courses, accommodation, student finance and UCAS.

Charity offers CV enhancements with British Sign Language course

A CHARITY supporting deaf people will be starting a new British Sign Language course later this month.

The Level 1.01 course offered by Hi Kent is the first or introductory stage of a three part course, and will run on Monday mornings for six weeks at a cost of £99 per person including end-of-course assessment fee.

Levels 1.02 and 1.03 will follow on at a cost of £120 each.

Course co-ordinator Naomi

Lemar said: "Knowing British Sign Language is an extra skill many employers look for, so it can help people to find jobs.

"It can make a great addition to a person's CV and students will be taught in a friendly group by a qualified BSL tutor with a great track record."

Hi Kent provides information, assessment and provision of equipment to deaf and hard of hearing people, including resource centres to view equipment, and lipreading support groups.

Established since 1986, the charity also runs a network of more than 200 hearing aid aftercare clinics in towns, villages and communities all over the county

The first British Sign Language course session will be held at Hi Kent's head office at 18 Brewer Street, Maidstone, on Monday, June 27.

A long way from Tipperary

Joe Bill talks to Marie Kelly of Dover Youth Theatre about her passion for developing talent of the future

IN BETWEEN releasing albums, performing internationally and singing for the BBC, Dover diva Marie Kelly is dedicated to coaching the stars of tomorrow. The Irish performer has been running Dover Youth Theatre for almost 17 years, helping to hone the skills of young performers from the age of six up to their late teens.

An experienced singer, musician and actress herself, the Tipperary-born entertainer throws herself into the role of artistic director at the award-winning performance school.

She said: "I love it. The stage is immediate. In film you can go back and change something if you don't like it.

"But on stage it is there, it is live, it is right in front of you, that is your moment.

"Every night is different because every audience is different and working with people on a live basis is stimulating and very challenging."

Marie began her performing career while studying medieval history at Trinity College in Dublin during the 80s. She said: "I had always been singing as a child, it was a way that nobody could tell me what to do while I was on the stage. So singing and acting had always played a large part of my life.

"I attended university, but it was always in the back of my mind that I wanted to sing full-time.

"At the same time as Trinity, I went over to the college of music in Dublin to see a great lady called Veronica Dunn, who had been a diva at Covent Garden.

"She was the premier singing teacher in Ireland at the time and I went to sing for her and managed to win a scholarship to the college."

And the mother of three even performed on television while studying in Dublin.

"In my last year at the college of music I ended up in the first opera to play the new national concert hall.

"I was actually the first person to sing at the newly-built hall, which was fantastic, and I found myself on the front cover of a few national papers because it was covered by the TV and radio."

Marie is married to husband Michael, who also lives and works in Dover, but it was the stage that brought the actress to England in the first place.

She said: "I played truant from college one day and auditioned for HMS Pinafore and that's where it all started. I got the part and ended up doing a long run in Dublin and other places and then finding myself in the West End in London.

"At that time, things weren't too hot in Ireland theatrical-wise, so I decided I would stay here."

The keen harpist does still have a few irons in the fire, but is now more focused on her family and work with Dover Youth Theatre, which celebrated its 16th anniversary in 2010.

The workshops run on a Tuesday from the Salem Baptist Church in Dover and are designed to get youngsters interested in performing arts to work on their skills.

"We have a very good, thriving theatre at the moment – amazingly, we have more boys than girls right now," said Marie.

"We want to make sure the children are stimulated using theatre warm-ups and improvisation and just doing something different.

"We are using everything we can – with the older ones we are doing audition pieces as they go off to audition to drama schools or to get into university, and we teach them how to handle themselves.

"It is really a bit of life preparation as well."

Marie started DYT after deciding to spend some time closer to home. She asked the council what it thought about her starting some performance classes – and the response was keen.

Since its beginning in 1995, the group has won a number of awards, including Best Youth Theatre in

KELLY'S EYE: Marie Kelly has spent almost 17 years helping to nurture young talent in her role as artistic director at the award-winning Dover Youth Theatre

Kent in 2007. It can also boast Pauline McLynn, best known for her role as Mrs Doyle in Father Ted, as patron.

Marie is a firm believer in variety for her pupils. "Lots of youth programmes around Kent focus only on musicals," she said. "We want to give children a chance at straight acting and real stage plays.

"I do like working with young people – it keeps you alive!"

The theatre has announced auditions for a workshop on Film Sport And The Performing Arts – A Celebration Of The Cultural Olympiad.

They will be held on Friday, July 1, from 4pm at the Salem Baptist Church hall. There is a limit of 25 free places and they are open to those aged 10 to 25. Entrants must prepare a short drama piece and an unaccompanied song in any style.

Phone 01304 202544 or email doveryouththeatre@hotmail.com to reserve your audition time.

IN LESS than a month the eyes of the world will be on Kent as one of the most prestigious international sporting events arrives in Sandwich. And with an estimated 200,000 visitors expected to descend on the county for The Open Championship at Royal St George's, the local economy looks set for a multi-million pound boost.

According to Visit Kent, a study carried out after the last Open Championship in Sandwich in 2003 revealed more than £17.6 million of additional spending was generated in the east of the county; £17.4m in London and the South East region; and £12.7m for the UK.

Early predictions suggest the value of the sporting event to Kent will be in the region of £48m in 2011.

And with hotels booked up as early as last year, all signs are pointing to a huge boost, which will come as a welcome break to the spell of bad news recently seen in east Kent where Pfizer announced in February it was leaving, with around 3,300 potential redundancies.

Some residents have decided to take advantage of the tournament by renting out their properties to visitors.

Although the sporting spectacular only runs from July 14-17, tourism chiefs anticipate a week long stay for many spectators and subsequent visits in the following months and years.

Visit Kent predicted some 1,000 jobs could be created directly and indirectly at golf courses, hotels, restaurants, travel companies and other local businesses.

Chief executive of Visit Kent, Sandra Matthews-Marsh, said: "The Open Championship is one of the most important global sports events and is watched by an estimated 100 million television viewers via 50 broadcasters around the world.

"Royal St George's is the only Open venue in southern England and the closest to London, so this is a significant opportunity for Kent to benefit not just during Open week, but in the years before and after the Championship.

"That's why we are working to attract both dedicated golfers and leisure visitors to take short and long breaks in Kent and enjoy the wonderful variety of golf courses we have, as well as the many other attractions the county has to offer."

Volunteers have been selected as ambassadors for the Kent Golf Partnership, which aims to use The Open legacy to promote sport and inspire future golfers, to help out at the Championship and provide support for organisers The R&A.

The 23 selected ambassadors, who are aged from 16-23, will also volunteer at junior, adult and disabled golfing events in the area in the run up to the event.

Young Ambassador Hannah Baker said: "This is a unique opportunity to experience both professional and grassroots golf in the county."

Jim Pocknell, chairman of the Kent Golf Partnership, added: "We were extremely pleased with the interest in the legacy project from young people across Kent and we are very impressed with the positive attitude and enthusiasm our Young Ambassadors have shown so far."

Preparations have been put in place to cope with the influx of people to Sandwich, with high-speed train services extended to the town, reducing journey times from London by one hour to around 95 minutes.

Service delivery director for Southeastern trains, Vince Lucas, said it was sure to be popular for spectators travelling from the capital.

"The Open is the biggest sporting event to take place in Kent, and is a great opportunity to show what the region has to offer," he added.

The move to link Sandwich to London with the high-speed line paved the way for a permanent service to be introduced from autumn to the historical town and neighbouring Deal.

During The Open there will also be a further hourly mainline service meaning the event will be served by four trains per hour.

For those arriving at the station a bus service will be provided to ferry spectators to and from the club. Those driving to Sandwich will have access to a 12,000-space car park and an additional park-and-ride site for 4,000 vehicles at Barville Farm off the A256.

Preparations for residents who will be effected have also been put in place with Dover District Council sending out 'local resident' stickers, giving locals access to effected areas in the town to ensure they can continue to move around freely.

Dover council has been working with Kent County Council on an overall traffic plan for the event.

Chairman of the Open Golf Project Executive, Cllr Nigel Collor, said: "The Open is an excellent opportunity for the area, bringing in millions of pounds, and giving a great chance to highlight the many attractions of the district and the county.

"As the eyes of the world turn to Sandwich, we continue to work with local residents and all our partners to make sure that day-to-day community life continues, and to ensure that we realise the major benefits of this prestigious event for the area for the benefit of everyone."

Organisers The R&A said they were delighted to be returning to Royal St George's.

"This was the first course outside of Scotland to host The Open Championship, in 1894 when JH Taylor won the first of his five titles," said chairman of the championship committee Jim McArthur.

"The great links of Royal St George's with all its natural beauty right on the edge of the English Channel places great emphasis on strategic play and not just muscle power.

"It is also a wonderful venue from a spectator's viewpoint due to the size of the site and the layout of the course with many natural vantage points providing great views of the action."

HOME FRONT: The Kennington Home Guard, in 1940, were some of Kent's thousands of volunteers

Real wartime Dad's Army diary discovered

By Nick Ames

nick.ames@archant.co.uk

THE real-life Home Guard was just as farcical as the accident-prone platoon portrayed in TV's Dad's Army, according to the diary of a Kent-based former officer.

The newly unearthed journal, found at an Exeter car boot sale, has lifted the lid on the real Home Guard.

And in some parts it makes the antics of the cast of the much-loved TV show look positively professional.

The journal kept by a Home Guard officer called Rodney Foster features a string of incidents that could have come straight from the TV scripts.

Mr Foster was a platoon commander based in Saltwood and his journal reveals bickering among officers, men caught sleeping on duty, and elderly volunteers too scared to go on operations in the dark.

It also tells of failure to shoot straight because of poor eyesight, and village hall training exercises with chairs piled together to make trenches.

It mirrors the TV show in which comic blunders by the likes of Captain Mainwaring (Arthur Lowe), Lance Corporal Jones (Clive Dunn), and Sergeant Wilson (John le Mesurier) proved a massive hit with viewers that it is still repeated to this day.

Lines such as "You stupid boy", "We're all doomed" and "Don't panic" have passed into popular culture.

In wartime, diaries from

military personnel were officially discouraged in case they fell into enemy hands – but this ruling was frequently ignored.

This particular one has emerged to throw fresh light on the last line of Britain's defence to the threat of German invasion – which saw Kent in the frontline during the early years of World War Two.

The diary tells how one rifle target practice session ended in farce when the platoon was split young and old – but the elderly members could not hit the target because of their poor eyesight.

The unit also took part in a mock invasion exercise at night – but some of the older men declined because they were frightened to go out in the dark.

A pair of young volunteers were sent to guard a remote waterworks at night but fell asleep and had to be woken by their commanding officer.

And in another exercise the unit was supposed to clear a wood of German parachutists, but two of the men spent the time chatting to each other.

Mr Foster, who was a lieutenant colonel in the Indian Army, joined the Home Guard at the start of the war and by 1942 was promoted to major, commanding 560 men.

In 1943 he quit to become an Air Raid Precautions warden – just like Captain Mainwaring's rival William "Put that light out" Hodges (Bill Pertwee).

Mr Foster, who was 80 when he died, wrote eight volumes of his experiences.

Northumberland antiques dealer Shaun Sewell identified him after buying the diary and, in November, Penguin publish an abridged version called The Real Dad's Army: The War Diaries of Colonel Rodney Foster.

Mr Sewell said: "As a guerrilla outfit I think they would have provided quite strong resistance to the Germans."

"All of them would have laid down their life to do what was expected of them and to hold the line against an invasion."

"There are elements that remind you of Dad's Army, but I was surprised at how professional they eventually became."

Dad's Army was screened between 1968-77 and spawned a feature film and stage show – as well as numerous catchphrases and newspaper headlines.

Mr Foster moved to Devon and died in Kingsbridge in 1962, and it was after the death of his daughter that the diary was sold as part of a house sale.

It then moved through at least two antique collectors before being obtained by Penguin.

A splendid stopping place on the road well travelled

THE Black Horse at Thurnham is a picturesque pub nestled in the heart of the North Downs. Since 1751 it has been providing travellers with food and refreshment, many of them walking the Pilgrim's Way. The tradition continues to this day, but for modern-day visitors arriving by car rather than horseback.

The pub near Maidstone has made its reputation by providing quality food for its guests. Local ingredients are freshly prepared by head chef Dan Curtis and his team.

Manager John Dyer said: "We have a full a la carte menu as well as good traditional pub food. We also have reduced-price set menus on Monday and Tuesday nights. We change the main core of the menu about every three months, but then we have specials that change every week and that offers really good value."

The Black Horse must be doing something right to attract so many visitors down the narrow lanes. On a busy night, staff can expect to serve more than 150 diners.

The pub also has a separate annexe with 30 en-suite rooms for visitors to stay.

Ramblers come for the great walks around the downs and business travellers seek it out looking for something superior to a service-station travel lodge.

John said: "We attract a lot of walkers and we are a dog-friendly pub, which many people like. During the week we also have a lot of business people and people staying who are coming to and from the Continent."

There are six circular walks near The Black Horse and the pub provides guides for guests to help them find their way.

Inside, there is a traditional welcoming Kentish feel. Hops hang from the wooden beams and wood stoves warm chilled or tired feet on cold winter days. In summer the large conservatory offers a bright, airy environment.

There is also a wide selection of real ales for the dedicated enthusiast.

John said: "We try to get in as many local beers in as we can. Real ale is really on the up. Young people are moving away from lager and we get a lot of feedback from customers about the ones that they like."

Drinkers can enjoy beers from local microbreweries such as Coppertop from the Old Dairy Brewery or Grasshopper from Westerham. Biddenden ciders are also on tap.

"A lot of guests are keen to try the local beers and, believe it or not, we do have a few drinkers who come here just for the cider," said John.

The pub's reputation has grown since the current owners took over 14 years ago. It also has a licence for wedding ceremonies and offers dining for large parties. Websites like Tripadvisor are useful for attracting new guests, although the pub's domain name of wellieboot may seem a bit unusual.

John said: "When the owners took over, there were two cats, one called Wellie and the other called Boot. The owners liked that because it tied in with the whole theme of walking."

John, the manager for nine years, is aware of the dangers of becoming complacent.

He said: "It's all about attention to detail. We have to offer our customers the whole package. We pride ourselves on having really friendly front-of-house staff. People don't want robots."

Variety is the spice of life, especially when served quickly

SOMETIMES you want to visit a restaurant where you're in and out in less than an hour.

Having to wait an age between courses is not to everyone's taste, which is presumably why the Chomchom Asian buffet restaurants in Beckenham and Canterbury are proving so popular.

But it's safe to say that speed of service is not all that this trendy new restaurant chain has going for it.

Indeed, it's a wonder there aren't more eateries to have cottoned on to the fact that when groups of people go out to dine together, they don't necessarily all want to eat the same type of food.

My partner and I visited the Canterbury branch one Tuesday evening and the place was heaving.

Given the variety of mainly Indian and Chinese dishes available, not to mention the speed at which you can get them on your table, it wasn't hard to see why.

RESTAURANT REVIEW

Chomchom's food is split into four sections – starters, mains, desserts and a separate noodle area where you can decide which ingredients you would like the chef to throw in for you.

The starters area contains an assortment of nibbles that cater for most people's tastes, ranging from chips and pizza to vegetable spring rolls, onion bhajis and sticky chicken.

Fans of Indian and Chinese cuisine will not be disappointed by the main courses on offer, as all the traditional favourites like beef in black-bean sauce, chicken tikka masala and rogan josh are in place. There is even the odd Thai and Italian dish to be found.

My only criticism of the dessert section was that it appeared to cater more for children, with an abundance of jelly, ice-cream, jam roly-polies and jelly beans. Not that it stopped me eating any of it, of course, but a wider range of treats would have been welcome.

Overall, there's nothing out of the ordinary in terms of the dishes available, but at roughly £15 per person – coupled with the fact that you can eat until you're full – it's excellent value.

The staff are all extremely friendly and helpful, and there is a bar at the entrance of the restaurant that is classy enough to visit even if you're not in the mood for food.

The cost for two buffet meals with a drink each was £37.79. The total time spent inside the restaurant was just over an hour, which is good news for those who like their meal to be the start of a fun night out.

All this quality and the choice really is yours

ONE of the great treats of today is a hearty meal amid beautiful countryside or in the heart of a bustling town centre.

Kent has a wide range of restaurants, pubs and other eateries catering for almost any requirement, with the à la carte menus offering the chance for diners to choose exactly what dishes they want to complement one another.

Whether it be a business affair where good food and drink oils the discussion and prepares for a big profitable deal, or a relaxed long meal with family or friends catching up on all the gossip, there is something for everyone in the Garden of England.

Here is a selection of excellent venues all offering something different yet with one thing in common – a commitment to culinary excellence and impeccable service.

Many of the county's venues pride themselves on serving top-quality local produce – whether it be locally-caught fish, Romney Marsh lamb, home-produced beef, or the strawberries, cherries, apples and plums from the rolling fields and orchards that make our county so special.

The choice is vast and an à la carte menu is the perfect way to ensure that diners can get to experience the superb range of fine foods on offer. And when it comes to something to wash down the meal – what better than delicious Kentish wines, ales or ciders?

Italy's Lake Como is the deepest lake in Europe. The area boasts impressive scenery, with mountains rolling down to the water's edge, and while the summer months are hot it is often still possible to see snow on the peaks of the mountains across the lake. There are many historic and beautiful villas lining the shores, such as the Villa Carlotta and the Villa Meltzi with their spectacular gardens as well as many larger villas that have in recent years been converted into luxury hotels.

Every town on the lake side has its charms, but some of the most spectacular views are to be found near the middle of the lake, between Tremezzo, Cadenabbia (our base) and Mennagio, Bellagio and Varenna where the sheer scale of the area, from the depth of the lake to the height of the mountains, can be seen.

IF YOU enjoy great sea views, big skies and historic landscapes, then visit the seven-mile-long Oyster Bay Trail. The first phase of this new cycle route comprises about five miles of promenade, new traffic-free cycle paths and lightly-trafficked residential roads. A further 1.5 miles are signed along the traffic-calmed Herne Bay seafront, which also benefits from a new 20mph speed limit along Central Parade.

The Oyster Bay Trail is signed Regional Route 15 and transports visitors from the sea wall at Swalecliffe towards Hampton.

The route then follows the traffic-calmed Herne Bay seafront and rejoins the promenade at the eastern end of the town. At Bishopstone it goes around woodland and on towards Reculver Country Park, where visitors can enjoy panoramic sea views, a delight at sunset.

Reculver Country Park is internationally important for wildlife as a Special Protection Area and Site of Special Scientific Interest.

The eroding cliffs provide an important habitat for a range of insects and birds. The cliff-top grassland provides a pleasant walk and cycle ride for visitors between Reculver and Bishopstone. Sand martins nest in the cliffs, while the grassland on top is a wildflower meadow, home to butterflies and skylarks.

Reculver Towers are a landmark and Scheduled Ancient Monument that can be seen across the coastline from Herne Bay to Birchington, and the Kentish Flats offshore wind farm can also be seen from afar.

Reculver Visitor Centre is a great place to stop and rest or to find out more about the area as it has superb displays and a range of information on the importance of the site for wildlife, history and geology.

Convenient cycle-parking and public toilets are also provided nearby.

For those wishing to cycle further afield, go further east along the Viking Coastal Trail towards Margate via the slipway and numerous bays.

■ Location: Swalecliffe to Reculver

■ Distance: 7 miles (11.3 km), allow one hour

■ Terrain: Mostly flat, surfaced path

■ Parking: At Reculver Country Park, Herne Bay and Swalecliffe

■ Refreshments and facilities: Visitor centre, toilets and refreshments at Reculver Country Park; refreshments also available en route at Swalecliffe and Herne Bay.

A BATTLE AT RECVLVER

ON Sunday, June 26, come along to the the Battle at Reculver between 11am and 4pm to view a re-enactment of a Roman battle at Reculver Towers.

There will be two battles, at noon and at 2.30pm. Visitors young and old will be able to visualise how Reculver might have looked and sounded in Roman times as Reculver becomes the stage for a showdown between Romans and Saxons. Fun for all the family, including stalls and entertainment.

For more information about the event, you can phone 01227 868515.

The newly-constructed seven-mile Oyster Bay Trail takes in some of the county's most spectacular coastline, a perfect route for cyclists to enjoy a leisurely ride as it winds its way around the shoreline, along Herne Bay seafront and concludes at the historic Reculver Towers

RIDE ON: The Oyster Bay Trail transports cyclists from the sea wall at Swalecliffe, along the seafront at Herne Bay to the finish at Reculver Country Park, which is recognised as a Special Protection Area and Site of Special Scientific Interest

"From regular feedback, this is something that our regular visitors have asked for and therefore this is our way of thanking them." Dickens World opened in May 2007 and is themed on the life, books and times of one of Britain's best-loved authors, Charles Dickens. The author is already synonymous with Medway,

The theme park takes visitors on a fun and fascinating journey of his works as they step into Dickensian England and are immersed in the urban streets, sounds and smells of the early 19th century. There is a host of shows and a cast of colourful nice and nasty Dickens characters to meet and get to know. The park has something to offer adults and children of all ages. Ashford

Open throughout July
www.revealingashford.co.uk

A NEW project is making young people the focal point of an Ashford arts festival. Some 200 will be converted into stencils and sprayed back on to the A at a live event at The Stour Centre in July. The model will then be put on display.

The project aims to raise awareness of youth in Ashford and allow them to express themselves. Young people who would like to take part can email a colour head-and-shoulders portrait of themselves (minimum 300dpi) to Ashford-A@hotmail.co.uk.

It features many rare items from the liner's passengers and crew members. These include some of the beautiful china dinner plates on which were served the first meals aboard, silverware, letters, linen and crew possessions. Must-see items include a fountain pen which belonged to the captain of the Titanic, together with his Steiff bear and a cup presented to him in 1911 before the fateful voyage. Together with the Titanic and White Star Line artefacts, the exhibition will incorporate examples of the luxurious interiors of sister ships Olympic and Britannic, as well as props and costumes from James Cameron's blockbuster movie. These include the necklace worn by Kate Winslet and costumes for Leonardo DiCaprio and Billy Zane. There is also a dressing-up area for young visitors to the exhibition.

Folk-singer Schmidt aims to win us over

Stag Theatre, Sevenoaks

Saturday, July 2, 7.30pm
01732 450175
www.stagsevenoaks.co.uk

TEXAS folk-singer Danny Schmidt is heading to the Stag theatre in Sevenoaks as part of a whirlwind tour of the UK. Since the release of his debut album Forest Rose To Sing, Schmidt has begun to emerge from the underground music scene in America.

The album had good reviews and charted for months on folk and Americana radio, making the Best of 2009 list and becoming the second-most-played folk album that year. Now, with the release of his new album, Man Of Many Moons, he is keen to crack Britain.

It is hoped that the acoustic-heavy album will hope to kick-start his quest for fans here. He said: "It's, for the most part, me and my guitar and the songs. That was the vision going in, and that's what we managed to stick with throughout the process."

Recorded by Keith Gary at Blue Rock Studio in Wimberley, Texas, the album features guest appearances by guitarist Will Sexton (Waylon Jennings, Roky Erickson) and top folk-singer Raina Rose.

Classic piano Burlesque on the ivories

Orchard Theatre, Dartford

Friday, July 1, 7.45pm www.orchardtheatre.co.uk

FINISHING with a flourish is taken to a whole new level as supremely talented pianist Chrys Columbine performs Chopin's Nocturne in C-sharp minor like you've never seen it before.

An Evening Of Burlesque features Columbine addressing the piano dressed in Victorian-style costume. At the piece's climax the elegant pianist rises to take a bow wearing considerably less than she began with.

The only artiste combining the art of burlesque with classical piano, she began piano lessons aged 11 and graduated from university with a music degree. Columbine has performed throughout the world, from Sydney to Southampton and all points between. Today she is a leading lady in the new Evening Of Burlesque stage show, which is on a nationwide tour, having been in London's West End and on national TV. Columbine said: "My routines can include fan dances, a Jessica Rabbit-based character, a Beethoven piano cadenza, Leonard Cohen's Dance Me To The End Of Love and The Birth Of Venus, inspired by Sandro Botticelli's painting. The appeal of burlesque has exploded in recent months. There is a genuine fascination in the way women dressed in years past. Columbine is just one of the performers appearing in An Evening Of Burlesque.

Art display Artists show for launch

style. Her paintings are familiar and nostalgic, with attention to detail, scale, perspective and depth of colour. Space is a new independent art gallery and space in the creative quarter of the seaside town.

School stories Tales from a raconteur

Assembly Hall Theatre, Tunbridge Wells

SPEND a heart-warming evening with Gervase Phinn, one of Britain's greatest comic writers and raconteurs, who has been touring and selling out theatres across the country for some eight years. Comedian, author, poet, broadcaster, lecturer, educational guru, after-dinner speaker and born raconteur... Gervase is perhaps best known for his series of five Dales books for Penguin. Affectionately dubbed 'the James Herriot of schools', his warm-hearted reminiscences about the life of a schools inspector in the Yorkshire Dales have featured heavily in Radio 4's Book Of The Week and Book At Bedtime slots. He has also written a range of academic books, children's poetry and fiction, has made numerous TV and radio appearances, and has spent the last six years developing a stand-up routine based on his comprehensive knowledge of life in and around education.

Phinn also writes a weekly column for the Yorkshire Post and a monthly piece for The Countryman magazine as well as occasional pieces for Dalesman, Down Your Way, the Daily Mail, the Daily Express and the Times Educational Supplement.

He also has two books out or on the way. Out Of The Woods But Not Over The Hill features him writing with warmth and wit about the pleasures and pains of growing older, while his first novel, Little School In The Dales, due for release in August, is a funny and touching tale set in a Yorkshire primary school. At the Assembly Hall he will share his tales of life as a schools inspector in the Yorkshire Dales. For fans of his radio appearances, this unique storyteller is even better live. Tickets cost £16.

OUR TOP FIVE

1 Diary of a Wimpy Kid 2: Rodrick Rules (U)
Based on Jeff Kinney's best-selling book, David Bowers's sequel continues the trials of wise-cracking tyke Greg Heffley. Seventh grader Greg (Zachary Gordon) thinks all of his problems are solved now he's moved up a year at Westmore School. Alas, insults in the corridor are nothing compared to the bullying he suffers at home from brother Rodrick (Devon Bostick).

2 The Hangover Part II (15) The sequel to the hit 2009 comedy sees the same characters in a similar nightmare scenario. Dentist Stu Price (Ed Helms) is set to marry Lauren (Jamie Chung) in a traditional ceremony in Thailand. Best friends Phil Wenneck (Bradley Cooper), Doug Billings (Justin Bartha) and Alan Garner (Zach Galifianakis) are invited and after a while start the alcohol-and-drug-fuelled bender...

3 Pirates Of The Caribbean: On Stranger Tides (12A) Johnny Depp hoists the mainsail once again. This time, Jack Sparrow joins forces with Barbossa (Geoffrey Rush) to locate the Fountain Of Youth. The quest becomes infinitely more perilous when Jack is forced aboard the Queen Anne's Revenge captained by legendary pirate Blackbeard (Ian McShane). Look out for Keith Richards!

4 Win win (15) Mike Flaherty (Paul Giamatti) is struggling to survive in the harsh economic climate. He thinks his prayers have been answered when he agrees to act as legal guardian to elderly client Leo (Burt Young), who has early Alzheimer's - a role which brings in a monthly stipend of 1,500 dollars. Matters become complicated when Leo's grandson Kyle (Alex Shaffer) turns up, having run away.

5 Attack The Block (15) Trainee nurse Sam (Jodie Whittaker) is mugged on her way home by wayward lads Moses (John Boyega), Pest (Alex Esmail) and Dennis (Franz Drameh). The assault is cut short by a meteor shower and when the youths investigate, they come face to snout with a creature from another world. A second downpour of meteors heralds more creatures and the lads grab their weapons ready for action.

NEW RELEASES

X-Men: First Class

12A, 131mins

VERY good things come to those who wait. Thankfully, British director Matthew Vaughn, who lifted spirits last year with the foul-mouthed Kick-Ass, repeats the feat with this exhilarating, action-packed prequel based on the hugely popular Marvel Comics.

After the lukewarm reception to spin-off X-Men Origins: Wolverine, Vaughn delivers a sleek and satisfying opening chapter that establishes the mythology of the characters and provides tantalising glimpses of where the series can go next.

The film opens in 1944

Poland, with young Erik Lehnsherr (Michael Fassbender) unlocking his devastating power of magnetism thanks to the provocation of sadistic concentration-camp commandant (Kevin Bacon).

At the same time in Westchester, New York, young telepath Charles Xavier (James McAvoy) meets shape-shifter Raven Darkholme (Jennifer Lawrence) and they become close friends.

Fast-forward to 1962 and Erik is hunting down the commandant to exact revenge for his parents. "Let's just say I'm Frankenstein's monster and I'm looking for my creator," he tells a henchman. It transpires that the German officer has reinvented himself as power-hungry globe-trotter Sebastian Shaw, who intends to spark nuclear war between Russia and America aided by mutant sidekicks Emma Frost (January Jones), Azazel (Jason Flemyng) and Riptide (Alex Gonzalez).

Standing in his way are Charles, Raven and five gifted mutants - Angel (Zoe Kravitz), Banshee (Caleb Landry Jones), Beast (Nicholas Hoult), Darwin (Edi Gathegi) and Havok (Lucas Till). At first Charles and Erik work together to defeat Sebastian, their common enemy. However, a rift opens between the mutant leaders,

This is a terrific reinvention, adhering closely to the comics to appease fans while entertaining cinema audiences with a tight script, snappy editing and directorial brio.

McAvoy and Fassbender are assured actors, capable of heartbreaking emotion, and there are plenty of tears here as nuclear war looms. The only quibble is Fassbender's wavering accent, which jigs from Europe to County Kerry and resonates so strongly of the Emerald Isle by the closing frames that you have to question if the Polish prologue was fantasy.

Senna

12A, 106mins

IN the high-speed world of Formula 1 racing, German driver Michael Schumacher is considered by many pundits to be the greatest athlete on four wheels, winning the World Championship a record seven times.

His dominance began in 1994, but that season will be remembered less for Schumacher taking the championship ahead of Damon Hill and more for the loss of Formula 1's arguably greatest and most unpredictable talent.

On Friday, April 29, that year at the San Marino Grand Prix, Rubens Barrichello was badly injured in the Friday qualifying session and the next day in final qualifying, Austrian driver Roland Ratzenberger lost his life navigating the Villeneuve curve at high speed. During the main race on Sunday, three-time champion Ayrton Senna's car left the track after the Tamburello corner, colliding with a concrete wall. He died soon after.

Made with the blessing of Senna's family and the cooperation of Bernie Ecclestone, Asif Kapadia's documentary pays glowing tribute to this handsome and charismatic sportsman.

Painstakingly constructed from hours of race footage, photographs, interviews and archive material, Senna celebrates the life of the Brazilian Formula 1 driver, whose death sparked a radical overhaul of safety procedures.

Area 51

Annie Jacobsen

Orion Books, £20

AREA 51 is a nickname for a military base located in the southern portion of Nevada in the western United States – in fact, it's 83 miles north-north-west of downtown Las Vegas.

Situated at its centre on the southern shore of Groom Lake is a large secretive military airfield. The base's primary purpose seems to be to support development and the testing of experimental aircraft and weapons systems.

Its secretive nature and undoubted connection to classified aircraft research, together with reports of unusual phenomena, have led Area 51 to become the focus of modern UFO and conspiracy theories. Some of the activities mentioned in such theories at Area 51 include the storage, examination and reverse engineering of crashed alien spacecraft, including material supposedly recovered at Roswell; the study of their occupants, living and dead; and the manufacture of aircraft based on alien technology.

Other conspiracy theories include meetings or joint undertakings with extraterrestrials, development of exotic energy weapons, or methods of weather control.

Area 51, An Uncensored History Of America's Top Secret Military Base, by LA Times reporter Annie Jacobsen, is based on interviews with service personnel based there and tells of its role in testing nuclear weapons, building advanced jet aircraft and as a centre for developments in the 'war on terror'.

These include constructing a mock-up of one of the compounds used by Osama bin Laden prior to 9/11.

altitude surveillance planes to contemporary stealth technology.

The work is deeply researched and documented through a patchwork of declassified reports that must have been numbing to navigate. Jacobsen converts all that material into a highly readable history that is a dream for aviation and military buffs, packed with anecdotes and characters who built their careers largely among US government 'black' operations so secret that even the wives of the participants didn't know what they did for a living.

There also are chilling depictions of the early atomic blasts, which in the years after the Second World War became something of a Las Vegas tourist attraction as people flocked to watch the mushroom cloud grow above the horizon.

All the tales are fascinating – but absolutely nothing compared with the revelations about what the author was told about Roswell and the supposed crashed alien spacecraft and the retrieval of small humanoid bodies.

What Jacobsen outlines makes the most outlandish episode of The X-Files seem understated. And if that won't get you reading this book, nothing will. Alternatively, you can watch some US TV as Jacobsen is doing the rounds of chat shows and this revelation is her star turn.

To End All Wars

Adam Hochschild

Macmillan, £20

A PASSIONATE work in which the author argues that those whose voices were raised in opposition to the conflict of 1914-18 deserve respect and should be acknowledged.

As those who were executed for desertion from the trenches and others who suffered what was then called 'shellshock' have become viewed sympathetically in recent years, this is a timely work.

It focuses on conscientious objectors and those in the public eye who opposed the war.

These included James Keir Hardy, an Independent Labour MP who stated publicly that British workers had no quarrel with their German counterparts. He was stunned when an anti-war meeting was drowned out by choruses of Rule Britannia.

The book explores the theme of how it is possible to oppose the war itself but still back the people who are fighting.

Government action against those who were against the war is also featured, including the apparent framing by Special Branch police officers of a family who gave shelter to men fleeing conscription.

A welcome addition to the mass of literature about the war with a very unusual slant.

The Jewel Hunter

Chris Goodie

WildGuides, £17.99

THERE is today an extraordinary wealth of bird books available to feed the voracious literary hunger of the nation's army of birders... although on reflection 'wealth' is perhaps the wrong word.

Many of these volumes are a rehash of a rehash of a rehash of something that has gone (thankfully) before. A name-check of the 'authors', some of whom appear to deliver new books on a near-daily basis, gives an idea of what to avoid. Nevertheless, I have sympathy for those trying to choose a present of worth for a birding lover or relative.

To that end, I'd like to help: buy this book.

The Jewel Hunter is the tale of Chris Goodie, a man who jacks in his comfortable if tedious job in a bid to see all the pittas in the world.

Pittas are some of the most fantastic-looking birds in the world. They are also some of the most difficult to see, spending much of their time on the dark forest floors of Africa, Australia and Asia.

Goodie has set himself a stiff challenge, and this work is a smartly-told and entertaining account of his adventures. His new career may just have written itself.

We spend a large portion of our lives in bed, which means the state of our bedrooms has a big influence on how well we relax – decluttering with a new wardrobe could be the answer you've been seeking

THE sun has been shining (sometimes), but if you're still fighting your way through a wardrobe of woollen jumpers and battling past your long winter coats, then what better way to get organised for summer than by adding fitted furniture or a luxurious walk-in wardrobe to your bedroom?

Sharps Bedrooms, with outlets in Folkestone, Ramsgate, Gillingham, Tunbridge Wells, Sevenoaks and Aylesford, has a range of fitted designs.

Gary Hunt, bedroom planning expert at Sharps, commented on making the most of space in the bedroom: "Most of us long for a spacious bedroom that we can be proud of – however, the reality is often very different.

"Lack of space and daily clutter mean that keeping a small bedroom organised can be tricky. However, fitted furniture is a versatile solution that can be adapted to suit both your room and your lifestyle needs.

"Suitable for all bedrooms, even those with awkward corners or sloping ceilings, fitted wardrobes make the most of every inch of available space, and while they have long been considered more traditional in terms of style, there is now a much wider range to choose from, including some highly contemporary designs.

"The beauty of bespoke fitted furniture is the clever internal storage solutions available. Opt for adjustable shelves, hanging rails, pull-out shoe, trouser and tie racks in your wardrobes to keep clothes in their place, built-in drawers and dressing tables to conceal belongings from view and over-bed storage to store large or awkward items.

“If you’re looking to transform your small bedroom and make the most of every corner, then it’s advisable to consult a design expert who can advise you on the best possible storage arrangements so that every cupboard and drawer is used to its best.”

Top tips include:

- Fitted wardrobes are the perfect way to make the most of your available space as they can be designed to fit any shape. Awkward corners, alcoves and sloping ceilings are all easily dealt with and Sharps also offers 45-degree end-wardrobes, which create a neat finish and offer that extra bit of storage.

- Adjustable shelves and hanging rails are ideal for changing seasons as your storage – and your wardrobe – needs tend to change with the weather. The Sharps HighLine range offers a choice of adjustable drawers, hanging rails and shelf options.

- Make the most of clever internal features such as hidden laundry baskets, which help to create a clutter-free room where everything has its place. Built-in shoe racks allow easy storage, keeping your shoes immaculate and making them far easier to find. Trousers and ties can be stored on pull-out racks to keep them neatly pressed. Adjustable drawers and baskets are perfect for smaller items such as make-up and jewellery.

- Over-the-bed cupboards capitalise on space which would otherwise be unused. Neat cupboards above the bed are ideal for items to which you don’t need constant access.

- A window seat is an attractive and extremely practical option. Perfect for large, bulky items such as blankets, or as a clever alternative to a toy chest in a children’s bedroom.

Sharps is the UK’s leading fitted bedroom furniture specialist, offering an all-inclusive service from design right to installation. Each bedroom is styled around you.

A fully-fitted Sharps bedroom starts at £1,800, including design, manufacture, delivery and installation.

To request the latest brochure or arrange a free design consultation, phone 0800 9178 178 or visit www.sharps.co.uk.

■ Coming in all shapes and sizes – and fitting into all shapes and sizes too – fitted furniture could be just the thing to clear some space in your bedroom and help you drift off into a nice relaxing sleep undergoing radical improvements thanks to the work of the Creative Foundation, which is spearheading an arts-led regeneration.

New restaurants are opening on a regular basis and the newly-opened Quarterhouse has seen an influx of bands and performers to complement those who take to the stage at the Leas Cliff Hall.

This summer is also seeing the second Folkestone Triennial Art Festival, which attracts the work of world-class artists, designers and sculptors from across the globe.

Sally Jinks, of Smith-Woolley & Perry, said: "This truly lovely family home offers prospective purchasers a unique opportunity with its versatile living arrangements."

An entrance porch and vestibule area, with a cloakroom and toilet, leads through to the hallway. The downstairs accommodation includes three reception rooms, a sitting room area with an attractive fireplace set in carved wood, a stripped-wood floor, a half-glazed door leading through to a conservatory, and an archway to the drawing-room area, which has a decorative marble fireplace with a living-flame coal-effect gas stove, fitted bookshelves and cupboards.

There is also a dining room with double casement doors leading out to the garden, a study, kitchen/breakfast room and utility area.

The first floor comprises a landing with an attractive leaded-light window and built-in wardrobe cupboards and fitted bookshelves. This residence has seven bedrooms: bedrooms one and three lead out on to a balcony and bedroom three is also en-suite. There is also a family bathroom and separate toilet, shower room and a box room/potential bathroom.

There is a delightful large, west-facing, mature garden to the rear of the property encompassing, among other features, a lovely patio area with a small pergola covered in climbing roses and clematis, providing an enjoyable and sunny place to sit or entertain.

A pretty sunken garden occupies the far side with a small circular pond as a centrepiece, and an appealing seating arbour settles here, giving a pleasing outlook over the garden and lawn.

The front garden is partly laid to lawn with a sweeping in-and-out drive and double garage.

Fully-illustrated details with floor plans are available from Smith-Woolley & Perry. Phone the Folkestone office on 01303 226622, or email sales@swanp.co.uk.

UPTURN: Seafront flats near the harbour are among the quickest-selling properties in Folkestone

HS1 holds the key to brighter future

PROPERTY prices in Folkestone have been buoyed by the high-speed rail link effect. With the coastal town now less than an hour away from London by train, and significant private investment, demand for sales and rentals has risen steadily.

H Wald & Co estate agent Karen Strawson said that HS1 was spearheading an upturn in property values across the market.

"Prices are expected to rise as the area is enjoying a resurgence of gourmet restaurants and an exciting programme of activities planned for the summer and beyond," she said.

"The new high-speed rail link enables commuters to reach St Pancras in just 57 minutes – this is having a huge effect."

Strawson said mid-market properties were the strongest sellers, with those at each end of the spectrum struggling to attract much interest. "Traditional, older-style two- to three-bedroom terraced houses and seafront flats are selling well," she said.

"Family-sized houses in the West End of Folkestone, near the train station, also always attract interest. Location is a priority for prospective purchasers. Historic Folkestone and neighbouring Sandgate are still very popular for residential and holiday-home properties, despite the recession.

"The rental market is booming and demand exceeds supply. Prospective tenants are seeking houses and flats alike and 'Buy to Let' is still a popular option.

"Realistically, the market is back to 2006 levels and one- or two-bedroom flats and higher-end properties are not moving so quickly."

The average property price in Folkestone is about

SPOTLIGHT ON FOLKESTONE

What makes it special

THE Leas is one of the finest cliff-top promenades in the South East, while the seaside gardens below have also become a popular visitor attraction.

The town is home to a lot of beautiful Georgian architecture. The Creative Foundation has helped give the town a new lease of life, regenerating both of which The Old High Street and Tontine Street, which are now home to galleries, restaurants and specialist stores.

Folkestone is also known for its Triennial, held every three years, which has grown to become one of the biggest art festivals in the UK and attracts performers from across the globe. The Battle of Britain monument is just two miles away at Capel-le-Ferne, while a number of good bars, galleries and attractive independent shops can be found in Sandgate.

Room to improve

PLANS to develop the harbour and seafront at the bottom of the Leas lift area and nearby flats have been slow to get going. The regeneration work that has been carried out in parts of Folkestone has been encouraging – there just needs to be more of it and it needs to be carried out quickly.

Procrastination could bring the regeneration positivity that has built slowly in the town to a swift end. The closure of the ferry service to France was also a serious blow. The re-establishment of this link could breathe new life into the town.

The road network is also an issue, being prone to congestion. Visitors often complain that the one-way system is difficult to negotiate and signage is poor.

Much of the Shepway district has suffered ugly urban sprawl.

Prices

THE average property price in Folkestone is around £170,000, although would-be homeowners can expect to pay more for homes in historic Folkestone, in the West End of the town and neighbouring Sandgate.

Shops

BOUVERIE Place is a new shopping centre that will hopefully draw some big-name retailers to the town. Primark opened a new store in September 2010, seeing footfall of shoppers double. TK Maxx is opening a store in September. Sandgate Road has a number of main high-street stores such as Smiths, Boots and Waterstones. Tontine Street and The Old High Street have some quirky stores selling musical instruments, paintings, other artworks and antiques.

Schools

FOLKESTONE is home to two selective secondary schools, Harvey Grammar School For Boys and Folkestone School For Girls. There is a number of good primary schools in the towns, including Sandgate, All Souls CoE and Hawkinge. Further education is provided at University Centre Folkestone, a joint initiative between Canterbury Christ Church University and the University of Greenwich.

Connections

HYTHE, Dymchurch and St Mary's Bay are among the coastal destinations to the south of Folkestone along the A259. Dover can be reached by taking the A20 in the opposite direction. For those looking to escape the coast, the M20 is the best option, leading into the heart of Kent and on up to London.

What's on

THE Leas Cliff Hall is the town's biggest cultural venue, playing host to a range of top acts from the music, theatre and stand-up comedy worlds. However, its No 1 one spot is being challenged by Quarterhouse, in the heart of the Creative Quarter. The Folkestone Triennial, which starts at the end of this month, will be worth a look for all arts fans across the region and further afield.

Around and about

HONOUR the brave pilots who gave their lives to protect our shores at the Battle of Britain memorial at Capel-le-Ferne. A great family day can be had at Port Lympne Wild Animal Park, near Hythe.

Luxurious load-carrying

By Sam Davison

editorial@kosmedia.co.uk

MIGHTY Mercedes built its modern-day reputation pretty much on one car – the E-Class.

Never mind the brand's current expansive range, including everything from the A-Class mini-MPV to the Herculean S-Class, plus the high-profile C-Class compact executive model.

Just accept that the profitable success of the E-Class and its predecessors – the company's management-level saloon and estate range and the world's favourite taxi – made all these other models possible.

The Big E's credentials have been simple: rugged build, space, thoughtful and practical design, easy driving and the cachet of that three-pointed star.

Increasingly, the model has also shed workmanlike styling to acquire an understated elegance that finds favour against some of its brasher, not to say rather idiosyncratically styled, rivals.

Brushing aside blips on the reliability radar with early previous-generation models, the current car – launched last year – upholds a tradition of dependability and practicality.

And there is an indefinable feeling of wellbeing behind the wheel; if you've slogged up the corporate rockface but now wait to the office in this, you may feel it was all worth it.

That star on the bonnet adds to the warm glow as you cruise effortlessly and quietly along the motorway in an airy and classy cabin.

The dashboard layout follows the corporate norm: understated and well arranged, although you yearn perhaps for a little more flair and harmony.

Fit and finish is, of course, exemplary – and should be for a car priced from almost £29,000, or £32,000 in the case of the estate model, as tested here.

Unlike its biggest rivals, the Audi A6 and BMW 5-Series, the Merc also concentrates on

THE BIG E: Rugged build, spacious, well designed, practical and easy to drive, Mercedes-Benz has delivered the goods yet again with its new E-Class estate delivering a fine ride, though the rear-driven chassis is still well balanced for quicker driving on more challenging roads.

Our test estate was a 200bhp E250CDI (from £33,435) wearing the BlueEfficiency label that signifies that this has all the latest eco-friendly bells and whistles that M-B can supply.

Refreshingly, BlueEfficiency is also the default option for the buyer: those who want speed and more power can swim against the tide if they want, but the majority of buyers won't find themselves paying more to save more on running their car and helping the environment – a lesson that some mainstream-sector carmakers could heed.

As ever with M-B, it is hard to detect any difference in refinement with the diesel engine versus petrol. Ours was fitted with a creamy seven-speed auto box and effective paddle shifts on the wheel for rapid manual gear selection.

For a big car, this powertrain also delivers decent performance yet should still average 50-plus mpg. Mercedes reckons it has wrung up to 26 per cent more power from the whole E-Class engine line-up without increasing fuel consumption.

But eking out economy is never the main reason for buying an E-Class estate: you buy because you need a comfortable workhorse, easily seating five and boasting a huge boot (690 litres rear seats up/1950 when flat) that is arguably the best there is for capacity.

And the days are past when your eyes watered at the M-B price list, even before you checked pricing the most basic 'extras' on to your car.

In its most junior SE configuration, the E250CDI comes with classy man-made and durable leather seats, smart alloys, cruise and climate controls, rear parking sensors, electric windows and mirrors, MP3 and Bluetooth connectivity and you will pay a not-unreasonable £990 for a powered sunroof.

Look around and see how many old E-Class estates are still going strong and looking good and you see another powerful reason to buy.

MOTORING NEWS

VW to set new Blue in motion

ORDER books are open for the latest VW Passat BlueMotion – a family car eco-warrior.

The previous BlueMotion set a record last year covering 1,527.63 miles on a tank of fuel, averaging 89.83mpg, but its successor in the all-new Passat range promises even more efficiency. It's here in July, priced from £19,875 (saloon) and £21,180 (estate).

BMW talks up MINI Coupé

MINI is expanding its line-up with a new two-seat Coupé model due in October.

BMW says it "indulges the keen driver with a level of agility unmatched in the small-car segment, along with a unique body and interior concept and the brand's customary commitment to premium levels of quality". Prices are to be confirmed.

Merc M-Class to hit heights

MIGHTY Mercedes-Benz says its third-generation M-Class luxury off-roader/SUV will set new levels for economy and emissions in its class when it arrives next year.

Range-wide fuel consumption is 25 per cent better than before, with the ML 250 BlueTEC 4MATIC entry model averaging 47mpg and emitting 158g CO<sub>2</sub>/km.

Chevy in Cruze control

IT WAS the motor trade's worst-kept secret – Chevrolet is to follow up on its stylish and affordable Cruze saloon by launching a hatchback version.

Probably held back to avoid clashing with the latest Astra hatch from sister brand Vauxhall, both cars will now do battle in the tough family hatchback market, where the classy-looking Cruze will have an edge on price, from an affordable £13,995, when it arrives in July.

It will also benefit from the prestige of the Cruze saloon's racing success: it won the 2010 British Touring Car Drivers' championship and both drivers' and manufacturers' titles in the World Touring Car series.

Chevrolet's UK MD, Mark Terry, said: "The hatchback version of the Cruze is a massively important new car for us as it not only appeals on a retail level but also increases Chevrolet's appeal to the fleet market."

"Alongside the Orlando (MPV) and the new Captiva (SUV), and with a new Aveo (supermini) just round the corner, we have a truly holistic model range that will appeal to fleet managers, user-choosers and retail customers alike."

Backed by a five-year warranty, the hatchback is offered in three trim levels, and with a choice of two petrol or one diesel engine. Further engine variants will follow, such as a smaller-capacity diesel.

All have electronic stability control as standard, along with safety features comparable to the five-star Euro NCAP-rated Cruze saloon.

The entry-level LS model comes with air-con, remote locking, electric front windows, follow-me-home headlights, electrically-adjustable heated door mirrors and a quality radio/CD player with auxiliary input.

Baby Land Rover delivery date Evoques excitement

LAND Rover dealerships across Kent have revealed that the eagerly-awaited 'baby Range Rover', the Evoque, will be priced from £27,955.

Available in both five-door, pictured, and three-door coupé forms, the range opens with the eD4 'Pure' five-door with six-speed manual gearbox and front-wheel drive – four-wheel versions start at £28,950 – while the Si4 'Dynamic' Coupé flagship with six-speed auto gearbox and Lux pack weighs in at £44,320.

Mark Nicholas, dealer principal for Barretts Land Rover in Canterbury and Ashford, said: "The Evoque is destined to become a design classic – the equivalent of a timeless little black dress or tailored suit that exudes quality and confidence but doesn't date."

"Owners will have the ability to tailor the look of their Evoque using one of three alternative design themes [called Pure, Prestige and Dynamic] as a starting point and then personalising everything from wheels to interiors."

Greg Wilcox, his counterpart at Harwoods Land Rover in Edenbridge and Tonbridge, added: "With a head-turning profile, a range of exterior colours, three contrasting roof treatments, seven alloy wheel designs and 16 contrasting interiors choices, as well as additional Tech and Lux packs, it's not surprising that the Evoque has already won the Car Design News 'Car Design of the Year' award.

"It will be one of the hottest designs on the road when it arrives in September."

Main Dealer Servicing

Keep dealers in your mind for car-servicing

AFTER buying a house, buying a car is usually the second biggest investment we make. So how do you protect that investment, apart from keeping it in good condition and insuring it?

By ensuring the service schedule is kept up to date and repairs are carried out promptly and competently.

Not so long ago, the best guarantee was a full main-dealer service history, a record that everything required of the car and the manufacturer's warranty had been carried out.

But this became seen as a restrictive practice by the European Union, which brought in legislation in 2002 making it illegal for car-manufacturers to insist on their cars being maintained solely by their franchise network to keep the guarantee intact.

It also meant manufacturers had to make vehicle-diagnostics information – crucial with increasingly-sophisticated vehicles – specialist tools and updates available to independent garages and servicing centres.

So why do so many car-buyers continue to use main-dealer franchising when an independent outlet is now allowed to do the work and stamp the service book?

An obvious answer is that many car-buyers, having parted with a lot of hard-earned cash, still believe it is the best way to preserve their investment. And they also think it is the best way to protect its part-exchange or secondhand sales value, since used-car-buyers will usually pay a premium for a full main-dealer service history, particularly on top marques like the XF from Jaguar (main picture).

The counter-argument, of course, is 'Ah, but you wiped out that perceived premium by paying more for your servicing via a main dealer while you owned the car'.

It is a point, but manufacturers and their main-dealer networks have raised their game considerably since the 2002 legislation. Indeed, with car sales and profits squeezed ever more tightly since the recession, many dealers know they have to fight harder to raise customer traffic elsewhere and they have chosen to battle it largely on servicing, cost-effective service plans, enhanced customer service, competitive pricing on items like tyres – normally the preserve of the quick-fit centres – and the perception that only a main dealer's service technicians can know its cars as well they do.

The other big by-product for the dealer is that happy service customers keep coming back, seeing the latest new car models on the showroom floor – one day soon, they may buy again.

Quick fix or fast buck?

AS MOTORING costs soar, it's all too easy to try to cut corners at the local 'quick/fast-fit' centre.

These specialist chains have blossomed as drivers try to save money on the biggest motoring 'consumables': exhausts, tyres, batteries, clutches, shock absorbers and routine services, plus the annual MOT.

But main dealers have not been sitting on their hands, reckoning that if car-owners are still using their service bays, then they won't mind considering realistic deals on tyres and exhausts, for instance, to ensure a time-saving one-stop shop purchase.

Using the main dealer also guarantees that only genuine manufacturers' parts are used, bringing the confidence of additional quality and reliability.

And that same guarantee, plus realistic pricing, has encouraged having bodyshop repairs done either by the franchise's own panel-beaters and paintshop or one that gets its seal of approval.

Main dealers have also borrowed from their quick-fit rivals by offering menu pricing; this means that, like dining out, a customer can decide what he wants and knows in advance what it will cost – avoiding any motoring indigestion when the bill is presented.

Some dealers will even let you spread the cost via a finance or servicing scheme covering several years.

Others may also offer a loyalty scheme to keep owners of older models on their books rather than see them defect to the non-franchised sector because those owners believe that the lower value of their car does not warrant the higher perceived cost of main-dealer servicing.

Another trick borrowed from the quick-fit sector is longer working hours at main-dealer service centres; dealers are much more aware that many customers want to drop off their car early on their way to work and then pick it up at the end of the day – a courtesy car may even be offered.

Bookings can often be made centrally, too, so that customers living midway between two franchised dealers within the same group can pick the most convenient service slots available.

FAST-FIT: Vauxhall MasterFit dealers have taken on quick-fit centres at their own game by offering competitive deals on consumables such as tyres

ACCURACY: Mazda's DSR system aims to counteract 'clocking' of a car's mileage

Stop the clocks turning back

ACCORDING to vehicle information experts HPI, one in 17 cars undergoing an MOT have had their mileage altered – or 'clocked'.

Mazda's new Digital Service Record (DSR) system seeks to counter that and provide a valuable, independent and accurate reference through the servicing records of its cars.

The internet-based DSR replaces conventional and potentially vulnerable maintenance booklets, meaning owners benefit from having centralised, secure and transparent records of their cars' service histories.

Car-clocking can be dangerous as it puts not only drivers and passengers at risk, but also other road-users.

A reduced mileage does not give a true impression of the wear and tear of the car, and, if the mileage stated on the odometer can not be verified, car-dealers and drivers can be vulnerable from a legal point of view, particularly on insurance claims.

"Mazda's DSR is first and foremost a quick, efficient and convenient service record system for Mazda's customers, providing easier access to service history and demonstrating regular servicing and maintenance," said Steve Jelliss, aftersales director at Dartford-based Mazda UK.

Don't do your trusty car a disservice

Even an enthusiast's car like the original 1970s VW Golf GTI feels primitive up against its modern successor

The downside, though, is that much less can be done by the DIY mechanic; keeping the car in reliable, correct and safe condition is now more of a job for the professional and, of course, it costs.

Unfortunately, this means that owners often ignore problems for too long and servicing is stretched beyond the recommended parameters, which also endangers the warranty and the provenance of the vehicle when you come to sell.

So, the golden rules are:

- Maintain the service record to the letter. Get it serviced at the correct mileages or annually and make sure the servicing book is stamped up, although some motor marques are switching to centralised digital records so that a car's servicing record is always available if required.
- Read the warranty document thoroughly to ensure there are no possible pitfalls that could endanger the guarantee.
- Make sure you act on any recalls from the manufacturer for checks or replacements, even if they do not relate specifically to safety – it will help maintain the warranty and future saleability of the car.

- Don't rely on the MOT as insurance of the car's safety and reliability, even if has just passed with flying colours – problems can arise at any time and you should get them checked as soon as possible.
- Check lights regularly for safety and legality. Get used to 'Lighting up' in the garage or when you are nosed in or backed up to a wall.
- Check tyres – including the spare – monthly, and that includes the correct pressures as listed in the handbook or the sticker often placed on the driver's side-door frame.

Though the legal tread depth is 1.6mm, most motoring authorities advise replacement at 2mm, especially in winter when icy and wet conditions can compromise grip.

- Keep oil, windscreen-washer, coolant, power steering, clutch and brake-fluid levels topped up without over-filling, and make those checks on level ground. Don't wait for warning lights to come on – it could be too late to prevent damage or compromise safety. Some cars have an interim set of warning lights, but these can be an unwelcome reminder if you are in the middle of a long journey at the weekend and miles from a decent garage. Don't be caught out.

- Replace wiper blades. There is little point in keeping the washer topped up if the blades are worn or split. But if the windscreen is covered with bugs and grease, don't expect the washer and wipers to do the job for you – use a spray and some elbow grease.
- Shop around for servicing. Even if you are committed to main-dealer servicing, it does not mean you have to go back to the one where you bought the car – some are better than others.

MAINTENANCE: Shop around for good quality servicing and (right) Skoda Fabia vRS – the Czech motor marque continues to win customer service awards for its models and the support of an enthusiastic dealer network.

Vauxhall promises good price on tyres

CUSTOMERS with a Vauxhall can enjoy a like-for-like price match on a selection of tyres through Vauxhall MasterFit retailers.

The Tyre Price Promise covers leading brands – Continental, Pirelli, Dunlop, Michelin and Firestone – within a five-mile radius of the customer's nearest MasterFit outlet.

Vauxhall spokeswoman Belinda Craik said: "Motorists don't always think to take their car back to the franchised retailer when looking for replacement parts such as tyres. However, we are confident that we can now demonstrate to our customers – through the Tyre Price Promise – that we not only provide quality parts as you'd expect with a vehicle manufacturer, but that we do so at an unbeatable price."

Customers can visit local Vauxhall MasterFit Retailer for tyre checks, changes and replacements without an appointment as there is a large range of tyres in stock.

How to win the warranty war

NEW cars are covered by a warranty. For years, the standard was three years and/or 60,000 miles, but a recent outbreak of 'warranty wars' between the car-makers has seen both the years and mileages increase.

It's a good reason for car-buyers to shop around, but some of the new deals also reinforce the old adage to check the small print.

This will confirm what the manufacturer will and will not pay for if the car breaks down within the agreed time period or mileage.

And this makes it imperative that the car-owner also sticks to the rules by keeping the car serviced according to the warranty and also taking note of and acting on any recall notices for unforeseen faults and problems.

Some are more lenient about late servicing than others, but a common pitfall is to have the car serviced only by mileage – most makers insist the car is serviced annually if the required miles are not being covered.

You don't have to use a franchised dealer for servicing – this stipulation was thrown out by EU legislation in 2002 – but do check for caveats in any case.

Be aware also that some marques offer the chance to extend the warranty for a reasonable cost or will 'wind back' the warranty clock to start again if you buy an approved used example from one of their dealers – not a bad option.

WITH A PEUGEOT SUMMER CHECK AT LEAST YOUR CAR WON'T LET YOU DOWN

Holiday driving should be a breeze. But car trouble can quickly dampen your family's mood. That's why we're offering a comprehensive Summer Check for £39.99* covering the following important items:

- Tyres
- Brakes
- Lights
- Wipers
- Steering & suspension
- Exhausts
- Fluid levels
- Battery

And because your comfort is important, an air conditioning check and treatment is included as well.

Carried out by expert Peugeot technicians, it's designed to check that your car is operating and performing as it should. For example, ensuring your tyres are in top condition, with the correct tread depth and pressure, can improve road handling, reduce braking distances and maximise fuel consumption. We'll provide you with a full report on the condition of your vehicle and if we do identify any problems, we'll let you know up front and outline the cost of any repairs – but you're under no obligation to have them done.

Summer check only £39.99

* Terms and conditions apply. Offer expires on 31st August 2011. Offer only available at the Robins & Day dealerships below. Retail sales only. Applicable to Peugeot vehicles only. The quoted price covers the cost of the Summer Check and Air conditioning check and treatment only. Includes VAT at the prevailing rate. If the check identifies any additional work required, this will be advised and quoted for separately. No additional chargeable work will be undertaken without the express agreement of the customer. We reserve the right to change, amend or withdraw this offer at any time. Cannot be used in conjunction with any other offer. Offer and information correct at time of publication.

Stopping you in your tracks

When was the last time you checked your car's brakes? Your car carries some valuable cargo, but brakes are something we tend to take for granted. Sometimes there are obvious symptoms such as a loss in braking performance, squealing or grinding noises or the car pulls to one side under braking but often parts wear gradually and the deterioration goes un-noticed.

Replacement brakes are free with Brakes for Life

If it turns out you need new brake pads or shoes then you pay for them just once; any subsequent replacement will be free. For as long as you own the car, each and every time your brake pads or shoes require replacement we'll replace them with genuine original parts – for FREE!

The only thing we ask is that you bring your vehicle back into the dealership every year for an inspection, service or MOT test. To take advantage of Brakes for Life or to find out more, pop into your local Robins & Day dealer or give us a call.

Keeping up with technology

INCREASINGLY complex vehicles and a shortage of skills in the jobs market has made the main dealer technician a hugely important part of a main dealer operation.

Sarah Sillars, executive chair of the trade's Institute of the Motor Industry (IMI), said: "The rate of technological change in the automotive industry is currently being driven by competition, consumer demands and regulation. This is creating a constant requirement for businesses to anticipate change and invest in training to help staff keep pace with developments."

The body has also developed a Consumer Code of Practice system to promote and maintain professional standards, while its sister organisation, the Society of Motor Manufacturers and Traders (SMMT), has published a paper called Strengthening Skills for a Growing Economy, calling on Government to help feed the demand for the necessary skill sets and ease unemployment at the same time.

Most motor manufacturers are proactive in finding and promoting technicians within dealership networks – many will be sent to sites and plants run by the companies in the UK and abroad to test skills and attain qualifications.

Suzuki technicians 'Master' exams to become the finest

SUZUKI GB Master Technician Programme has reached its first 'century', having produced more than 100 graduates who are now putting their skills to work in dealer service centres across the country.

The Master Technician is at the pinnacle of a three-tier training and assessment package, the high standards of which have been officially recognised by the Institute of the Motor Industry (IMI) with its Quality Assured Award.

And there is no resting on laurels; passes remain valid only for a set period of time, which encourages technicians to maintain progress and familiarity with current and new models.

It's a fix – servicing a peace of mind

WITHOUT doubt one of the best weapons picked up by main dealers has been the fixed-price service plan.

Initially, it was a trick tried by premium brands, whose service costs were perceived as too pricey and taking advantage of an owner's natural reluctance to jeopardise the future value of the car by servicing outside the dealer network.

But it has been increasingly successful for mainstream brands as they battle a burgeoning independent and quick-fit sector, only too happy to siphon off the steady churn of servicing work.

One of the most high-profile pioneers of the fixed-price deal was Mini: the BMW-owned brand wanted to offer a sophisticated premium small car, but small-car-owners typically want low ownership costs.

The way around this was to buy the long-term loyalty of buyers by offering them a sharply-priced long-term servicing relationship.

In typical Mini marketing style, the package was also well put together under the label TLC – tender loving care.

The success was not lost on sister brand BMW, which also offers a fixed-price, long-term servicing deal for five years, from just £300.

Not to be outdone, Mercedes-Benz launched its Service Care plan for any new or Approved Used Mercedes-Benz or Smart car and, like some other brands, also makes it available to existing owners according to certain criteria.

TECHNICIAN AT WORK: Renault launched its keenly-priced Service Care plan earlier this year

And customers can tailor the plan to their own requirements – purchasing two, three or four services over a one-, two-, three- or four-year period.

M-B customer services MD Simon Oldfield said: "It really is servicing made simple."

But mainstream marques are not to be outdone. For instance, Renault launched its bargain-price Service Plan this year from just

The all-inclusive price covers all scheduled servicing, labour and VAT charges and the policy can be transferred to different owners for free prior to expiry, potentially adding to the vehicle's resale value.

The blurb for such schemes uses the word 'policy' a lot, for that is virtually what they are:

PIONEER: Mini initiated the rise of fixed-price servicing with its TLC package

CARE PLAN: Mercedes-Benz A Class – the premium brand has a cost-effective Service Care plan to help drivers reduce running costs insurance policies for servicing and the vehicle warranty – a cost-effective but necessary part of the month-by-month cost of running a car.

Servicing round-up

■ ITALIAN sister brands Fiat and Alfa Romeo have developed cost-effective service plans that take the worry out of running the car and allow the cost of ownership to be broken down into a simple monthly total for servicing, road tax and insurance. It makes it easier to enjoy modern-day icons like the retro 500C roll-top convertible, left, and Alfa Romeo Giulietta, right, the brilliant driver's car that also just happens to be a versatile family hatchback.

■ AS MOTORING and fuel costs have soared, Nissan has rolled out a flexible range of fixed-price servicing menus and service plans on popular models like the Qashqai crossover.

■ PEUGEOT has partnered a versatile range of models – like the award-winning 3008 crossover pictured here – with a flexible servicing plan package called Optiway. It means that owners of a 3008, for instance, can buy servicing cover for as little as £13.99 a month.

■ THERE are times when servicing is best left to main dealers: when the car features mould-breaking technology like the petrol-electric hybrid powertrains of the Lexus hybrid range, including the RX450h SUV pictured here. Fortunately, the Japanese premium brand has it covered for would-be buyers of new or used examples, in the form of Pre-paid Service Plans – a version is available even for cars older than five years.
